FIRST STUDENTS FOR ASTRP ARE ARRIVING TODAY

By noon today the first 80 youths of the minimum of 225 17-year-old high school graduates which will make up the 3229th Service Unit of the Army's Specialized Training Reserve program had arrived on the Gettysburg college campus and had begun the processing program that will lead them to their first classes next Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

The new student-soldiers will be completely outfitted by next Wednesday through the operation of a mobile sizing, fitting and clothing unit to come here in a large van Friday carrying a sample stock of uniforms and other clothing requirements of the youths.

Under the new, novel plan for outfitting the young men quickly in clothing that fits, a sizing and fitting station will be set up by the unit on the campus by expert fitters who will note clothing requirements of all of the young men. Those records will be consolidated into clothing requisitions which will be sent to the induction center at New Cumberland and within 48 to 60 hours the completed clothing requisitions are expected to be in Gettysburg with all of the youths fully outfitted by next Wednesday at the latest.

Processing Schedule

Registration of the new students today—with more scheduled to come in this afternoon and Friday and Saturday—was under the direction of Col. Frank E. Sharpless, ROTC commandant at the college.

The new arrivals are sent to the college gymnasium to fill out complete personnel data forms and summarize their academic training. Then they are sent to "Station No. 2" for a hot shower and clean-up after which they go to Huber hall on the campus for food. The next stop is Old Dorm, which will be the campus barracks for the 17-year-olds. There they are issued beds and bedding and are assigned to rooms according to the academic courses they will be taking. Faculty interviews follow. Scholastic records are checked and tests are given to determine scholastic levels.

Classes, Athletics and Drills

The schedule of training that the youths will begin next Monday morning will include from 42 to 45 hours of academic instruction each week, six hours of physical training and five hours of military drill each week.

Some of the youths are being enrolled for three and some for two terms of three months each.

There are about 100 civilian students enrolled for the regular summer term at the college which is scheduled officially to open next Thursday.

Give War Bond To First Baby Born June 12th

The first baby, boy or girl, to be born in Adams county on June 12, first day of the Fifth War Bond drive, will receive a war bond to officially open the Victory Cradle Roll, Mrs. Guile W. Lefever, chairman of the county Victory Cradle Roll committee, said today.

Chairmen of the various district women's committees are urged to notify Mrs. Lefever of any baby or babies born on June 12, and to ascertain the exact time of birth in order that the first baby born may be officially credited and awarded the bond.

Mrs. J. C. Donley is chairman of the Gettysburg Committee for the Cradle Roll. Other members include: Mrs. Paul Pensinger, Mrs. Charles Pitzer, Mrs. Austin Lang, Mrs. S. Richard Eisenhart and Mrs. Harold Pegg.

Babies may be enrolled on the Victory Cradle Roll by having their parents, relatives or friends purchase a war bond in his or her name during the Fifth War Bond drive. Special Walt Disney certificates will be awarded each purchaser of a bond in a baby's name. Babies eligible include all those up to and including five years of age.

NURSES' AIDE CLASS TO OPEN

"We have hopes that the invasion and the consequent danger to our boys in service will inspire more women in Adams county to enroll for training as Red Cross Nurses' Aides," Mrs. E. S. Lewars, chairman of the Adams county Red Cross chapter, said today in announcing the opening of a new training course for aides next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the Nurses' home at the Warner hospital.

"We have some enrollees but not enough and the course cannot be given unless we have an enrollment of at least twelve. We believe an additional reason for enlisting in war service as a Nurses' Aide is that aides who complete the training course may now be employed in military hospitals," Mrs. Lewars added.

Mrs. Sydney J. Poppar again will be the instructor.

Mrs. Henry M. Scharf, Nurses' Aide chairman for the county Red Cross chapter, is planning a new appeal for volunteers for the training course in a letter to be sent to all of the pastors of the county.

The Red Cross officials pointed out that special rations of gasoline may be secured for those who require them to attend the training course.

"DICK" THOMAS WRITES MUSIC FOR ARMY SHOW

Pfc. Richard B. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund W. Thomas, West Lincoln avenue, recently spent a 10-day furlough working on music for "Rumor Has It" an Army show, according to the issue of an Ann Arbor, Michigan, newspaper on Saturday, May 27.

The article follows: "Pfc. Richard B. Thomas of Co. D is spending his ten-day furlough in Ann Arbor working on the music for Co. D's comedy, 'Rumor Has It,' which will be presented Thursday and Friday in the Lydia Mendelsohn theatre.

"Dick is in charge of all orchestration and musical arrangement for the show. In addition to conducting the orchestra, he is accompanying in rehearsal. When the show is presented, he will direct the orchestra from the piano.

"For the past six days he has been working from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., writing a master copy of the arrangement, taking just a half hour out for lunch. From 7 to 10 p. m. he copies off the parts for the different instruments.

"He explained that when one is making arrangements unless he has had a lot of experience, he never knows just how it is going to sound until he hears the songs. Usually, he added, this is the result of a lack of experience on the part of the arranger, and because different people play the arrangement different ways. Consequently, he said, adjustments often have to be made at rehearsal when he finds, for example, that he has written a double forte for the fumes in middle C.

"At rehearsal the arranger has the job of synchronizing the orchestral arrangement with the vocal dancing and solo parts, Dick claimed that the least of his worries is the performance of the musicians who plays the parts.

"The orchestra is made up of 11 pieces, and is based mainly on woodwinds. It consists of two flutes, three clarinets, one oboe, one French horn, one bassoon, a string bass, a drum and a piano.

Rome's Principal Port Is Captured; Advance 38 Miles

By NOLAN NORGAARD about 25 miles northeast of Rome. Rome, June 8 (AP)—The Fifth army has captured Civitavecchia, Rome's principal port, 38 miles northwest of the capital, and today was thrusting swiftly up the west coast to maintain contact with the retreating enemy.

Other Fifth army units, speeding in a more northerly direction, captured the town of Bracciano, 20 miles north of Rome, on the west shore of the large lake of the same name. Still another column was last reported passing the lake on the east side, 15 miles north of Rome.

The Germans still appeared to be withdrawing in a bad state of demoralization.

In Wild Disorder

An official spokesman declared "the battered remnants of the German 14th army are in a considerable state of disorganization. Upwards of 40 Wehrmacht formations are represented in the collection of prisoners taken in the exodus from Rome and beyond. Apparently even battalions are attaching themselves to whatever higher echelon is available."

Allied forces driving due north of Rome captured Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's former headquarters, about three miles southeast of Civita Castellana.

The headquarters was described as an "elaborate, tunnelled underground stronghold."

Eleven Gettysburg battlefield pictures are included in a handsome 112-page illustrated book on Pennsylvania presented by Governor Martin to each of the governor's attending the governor's conference at Hershey last week. Additional copies have been distributed to libraries.

The book, published specially as a part of this state's official welcome to the state executives attending the conference from May 28 to 31, is clothbound with the coat of arms of the state superimposed in gold on the dark blue background.

The Gettysburg scenes which appear in the volume's historical section include two views of the Virginia State Memorial, the equestrian statue of General George G. Meade, a view from Little Round Top showing the bronze statue of General Warren, a half-page picture of the Eternal Light Peace Memorial, Meade's Headquarters, the Lutheran Seminary cemetery and cupola, the High Water Mark, the Pennsylvania Memorial where General Martin placed a wreath on Memorial Day, the North Carolina and the Alabama monuments.

On the inside of the front and back covers of the volume are colored maps of the state showing points of historical and scenic interest in the state, parks, monuments, recreational areas, chief products, wildlife and principal industries.

Gettysburg is indicated on the map as a point of historical and scenic interest and is marked with a reproduction of the Eternal Light Peace Memorial with laurel and apple and peach blossoms indicating other Adams county attractions.

Other sections of the book are devoted to portraying industrial, scenic, cultural and military highlights in Pennsylvania.

The book was issued under the supervision of Floyd Chalfant, member of the Governor's committee for the conference at Hershey and the visit to Gettysburg. He is a state secretary of commerce.

Firemen Receive Solicitation Cards

Solicitation cards to be distributed by members of the Gettysburg fire company to residents of Gettysburg asking donations for the company were handed to the firemen Wednesday evening at a meeting of the company at the Firemen's Retreat in the South Mountains.

The cards ask cash contributions and replace the annual requests for gifts for the bazaar which this year will be a one-night affair, June 30, at which drawings will be held for prizes. Thirty-five members attended the meeting with President James B. Aumen presiding.

AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Miss Ruth A. Scott, Fairmore street, member of the Gettysburg high school faculty, has enrolled as a student for the summer session at Pennsylvania State college. She will continue her studies for nine weeks.

COMMUNITY TO CONDUCT SCRAP DRIVE TUESDAY

Gettysburg's June salvage collection will be held Tuesday afternoon and evening, starting at 2 o'clock, with the local firemen's salvage committee hoping to stage the biggest collection in the history of the community. Vernon B. Corle, chairman of the committee, said today.

"The firemen will begin their trips through the streets of the borough Tuesday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and will continue throughout the afternoon and evening in collecting the salvage placed on the sidewalks by the people of the town," Corle said.

Urging local residents to back up the invasion of the continent of Europe with "an invasion of the attic and cellar to secure all possible scrap for the June drive" the firemen's committee added that it will continue its collections Wednesday if the response is so great it will be impossible to collect all of the salvage materials on Tuesday.

Seek 100 Tons

"To meet the needs for salvaged paper and other articles, we must obtain 100 tons of scrap during the forthcoming drive. And I believe there is that much obtainable in the town if everyone explores every source in order to get out the materials that are of no use to them—but are of utmost importance to the war effort.

"The figures given concerning the number of boats, planes and the like needed for the invasion give some idea of the tremendous need for waste paper, among other salvageable articles. Every bomb dropped during the invasion was protected on its way to Europe by a paper mine. All of the shells were protected by paper to prevent their being scratched and thus made erratic in their flight to German-held strongholds. All of the articles of food that went with the men in the invasion barrels is wrapped in paper.

"To meet that need for paper we need scrap paper which will be processed, broken down into pulp and made into fresh paper products for our men in the service," Corle said.

ROUTINE BUSINESS

Routine business was transacted by the Adams county commissioners at their regular meeting Wednesday, it was announced today.

Bayeux Falls As Beachheads Are Extended

By WES GALLAGHER

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8 (AP)—Allied invasion troops constantly reinforced by air and sea struck south of fallen Bayeux in fierce fighting today, striving to chop off the Cherbourg peninsula, and Berlin reported a pincers threat to seize the tip of the jutting coast and its strategic port of Cherbourg.

Capture of Bayeux snipped the railway between Paris and Cherbourg, 45 miles to the northwest, and opened the way for a thrust deeper inland.

But farther west the Germans pictured Allied forces already within 20 miles of a junction that would choke off Cherbourg itself. Berlin declared house-to-house fighting raged in Ste. Mere-Eglise, 20 miles southeast of the port, and said parachutists had landed on the west coast only a score of miles southwest of Ste. Mere-Eglise.

There was no Allied confirmation of west coast landings or fighting at Ste. Mere-Eglise, on one of the two main roads to Cherbourg.

Beach Troops Join Airborne Forces

Heavy battles, with tanks and reserves sped up by both sides, flared over the peninsula. Allied beachhead troops are linking up with airborne forces dropped deeper inland, headquarters said, and improvement in adverse weather aided reinforcements for glider sky trains.

Field reports declared British-Canadian troops had captured a number of French towns and villages, advancing on open roads to points some miles from the coast. Infantrymen rode to battle on bicycles and tanks to speed the advance.

A Berlin broadcast said British troops pushed through Bayeux early today and are advancing southwest toward the Vire river, which cuts across the peninsula.

On the third day of the invasion, Supreme Commander Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared:

"My complete confidence in the ability of the Allied armies, navies and air forces to do all they are asked to do has been completely justified."

Germans Report Red Offensive

Even as he spoke, Berlin radio reported the Russians had launched an offensive north of Iasi in Romania—perhaps the beginning of a coordinated nutcracker blow from the east.

Eisenhower declared the ground troops are "performing magnificently," praised the naval landing operations as surpassing any other amphibious operation he has seen, and lauded the "long and brilliant" aerial campaign that proved such effective preparation for landings.

Powerful air armadas scoured German defenses today, with 750 to 1,000 Flying Fortresses and Liberators mauling bridges, railroad targets and airfields in an arc 100 to 150 miles south of the beachheads, and U. S. Marauders starting fires in Caen, southeast of Bayeux, toward which a beachhead force is driving.

Canadian and British troops have captured several hundred prisoners and shot up numerous Nazi 88-millimeter guns, field reports said. Canadian press correspondent Ross Munro, with Canadians in an unidentified sector, said the Germans were reported falling back in one area under persistent attacks, and "strength is being built up rapidly in the Allied bridgeheads for the big battles which should come any day, or even any hour."

Fly Heavy Equipment From England

The German high command declared the Allies had opened an attack from the bridgehead between Caen and Bayeux, and that Nazi forces counterattacked. Heavy fighting continues, it added.

Berlin said Americans who gained a foothold north of Carentan, some 27 miles southeast of Cherbourg, had suffered heavy casualties. It also claimed successes near the Orne river mouth, above Caen.

A landing attempt in the Bay of St. Martin at the northwest tip of the peninsula, near Cape De La Hague, was frustrated, the enemy high command said.

Engineer troops joined the flood of Allied reinforcements, helping in tearing down Atlantic wall defenses, and a U. S. Ninth Air Force troop carrier report of flying in jeeps and guns disclosed the Allies had captured or built at least one airfield on the peninsula.

"Everything is going excellently," said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, ground forces commander.

Cover 50-Mile Coastal Stretch

It is now apparent the Allies have several beachheads on a 50-mile coastal stretch between Caen and Carentan, with some of them joined together.

Headquarters was silent on Berlin reports that parachutists in a deep, daring thrust had landed at Falaise and Argentan, 30 miles southeast of Caen, with street fighting flaring in Falaise. The Germans said eight to 13 Allied (Please Turn to Page 2)

"The figures given concerning the number of boats, planes and the like needed for the invasion give some idea of the tremendous need for waste paper, among other salvageable articles. Every bomb dropped during the invasion was protected on its way to Europe by a paper ring. All of the shells were protected by paper to prevent their being scratched and thus made erratic in their flight to German-held strongholds. All of the articles of food that went with the men in the invasion barges is wrapped in paper."

"To meet that need for paper we need scrap paper which will be processed, broken down into pulp and made into fresh paper products for our men in the service," Corle said.

Bayeux Falls As Beachheads Are Extended

By WES GALLAGHER

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8 (AP)—Allied invasion troops constantly reinforced by air and sea struck south of fallen Bayeux in fierce fighting today, striving to chop off the Cherbourg peninsula, and Berlin reported a pincers threat to seize the tip of the jutting coast and its strategic port of Cherbourg.

Capture of Bayeux snipped the railway between Paris and Cherbourg, 45 miles to the northwest, and opened the way for a thrust deeper inland.

But farther west the Germans pictured Allied forces already within 20 miles of a junction that would choke off Cherbourg itself. Berlin declared house-to-house fighting raged in Ste. Mere-Eglise, 20 miles southeast of the port, and said parachutists had landed on the west coast only a score of miles southwest of Ste. Mere-Eglise.

There was no Allied confirmation of west coast landings or fighting at Ste. Mere-Eglise, on one of the two main roads to Cherbourg.

Beach Troops Join Airborne Forces

Heavy battles, with tanks and reserves sped up by both sides, flared over the peninsula. Allied beachhead troops are linking up with airborne forces dropped deeper inland, headquarters said, and improvement in adverse weather aided reinforcements for glider sky trains.

Field reports declared British-Canadian troops had captured a number of French towns and villages, advancing on open roads to points some miles from the coast. Infantrymen rode to battle on bicycles and tanks to speed the advance.

A Berlin broadcast said British troops pushed through Bayeux early today and are advancing southwest toward the Vire river, which cuts across the peninsula.

On the third day of the invasion, Supreme Commander Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared:

"My complete confidence in the ability of the Allied armies, navies and air forces to do all they are asked to do has been completely justified."

Germans Report Red Offensive

Even as he spoke, Berlin radio reported the Russians had launched an offensive north of Iasi in Romania—perhaps the beginning of a coordinated nutcracker blow from the east.

Eisenhower declared the ground troops are "performing magnificently," praised the naval landing operations as surpassing any other amphibious operation he has seen, and lauded the "long and brilliant" aerial campaign that proved such effective preparation for landings.

Powerful air armadas scourged German defenses today, with 750 to 1,000 Flying Fortresses and Liberators mauling bridges, railroad targets and airfields in an arc 100 to 150 miles south of the beachheads, and U. S. Marauders starting fires in Caen, southeast of Bayeux, toward which a beachhead force is driving.

Canadian and British troops have captured several hundred prisoners and shot up numerous Nazi 88-millimeter guns, field reports said. Canadian press correspondent Ross Munro, with Canadians in an unidentified sector, said the Germans were reported falling back in one area under persistent attacks, and "strength is being built up rapidly in the Allied bridgeheads for the big battles which should come any day, or even any hour."

Fly Heavy Equipment From England

The German high command declared the Allies had opened an attack from the bridgehead between Caen and Bayeux, and that Nazi forces counterattacked. Heavy fighting continues, it added.

Berlin said Americans who gained a foothold north of Carentan, some 27 miles southeast of Cherbourg, had suffered heavy casualties. It also claimed successes near the Orne river mouth, above Caen.

A landing attempt in the Bay of St. Martin at the northwest tip of the peninsula, near Cape De La Hague, was frustrated, the enemy high command said.

Engineer troops joined the flood of Allied reinforcements, helping in tearing down Atlantic wall defenses, and a U. S. Ninth Air Force troop carrier report of flying in jeeps and guns disclosed the Allies had captured or built at least one airfield on the peninsula.

"Everything is going excellently," said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, ground forces commander.

Cover 50-Mile Coastal Stretch

It is now apparent the Allies have several beachheads on a 50-mile coastal stretch between Caen and Carentan, with some of them joined together.

Headquarters was silent on Berlin reports that parachutists in a deep, daring thrust had landed at Falaise and Argentan, 30 miles southeast of Caen, with street fighting flaring in Falaise. The Germans said eight to 13 Allied (Please Turn to Page 2)

The auxiliary sponsors the clubmobile by securing cash donations and turning in coupons. A total of $1,222.79 was raised in May through cashing in the coupons received from various types of merchandise.

The Department auxiliary purchased 50 ambulance planes for the U. S. Army by raising $5,550,000 in war bonds. Nab Brooklyn Men For Theft Of Truck

The presence of mind of an Emmitsburg resident led to the arrest Wednesday of three youths from Brooklyn, New York, who had stolen a truck Tuesday in New York City.

The men, Anthony Bufo, 20; George Mann, 22, and Alfred Verdecanna, 22, driver of the truck, all from Brooklyn, were said by local state police to have stolen the truck and then to have driven to Virginia. On their way north from Virginia they attempted to sell the truck to an Emmitsburg man, who became suspicious of the trio and called local police to pick up the men as they drove toward Gettysburg. Pvt. Harold Sheads stopped the trio.

They are now in the county jail, having signed waivers of extradition, awaiting the arrival of New York authorities.

Bayeux Falls

divisions were fighting on the peninsula.

Thundering naval support of the drive continued, and Allied airmen destroyed 102 Nazi planes yesterday.

Hungry French villagers greeted liberating troops with flags and kisses.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower used his airborne troops to the fullest, and an observer on a ship in the channel said at one time "the sky overhead became unbelievably crowded with aircraft. Four lanes of tow-plane traffic going each way spanned the channel."

The Germans likewise rushed in new strength, and Prime Minister Churchill warned against over-optimism, declaring "enormous exertions lie before us."

3 Days Of Fighting

Some of the troops have been fighting continuously since Tuesday morning, and it is likely there may be a short lull in advances as they rest, regroup, and bring up supplies.

Supreme Headquarters described the capture of Bayeux, five miles inland from the central Normandy coast and first French city to fall to the invaders, as "very important news" because it opens up avenues for a new advance deeper into France.

"Progress continues despite determined enemy resistance," said this morning's communique. "Fierce armored and infantry fighting has taken place."

A Berlin broadcast indicated south-bound Allied forces already had left Bayeux behind. This report said "hard fighting" still was in progress against an Allied group "which launched a thrust immediately south of Bayeux." Berlin identified the group as British and Canadian infantry and tank units.

Down 102 Planes

German aircraft began to appear in the battle areas in greater numbers. In the past 24 hours, headquarters announced, a total of 102 enemy planes were destroyed—82 in air combat and 20 on the ground.

Allied air forces flew more than 9,000 sorties yesterday, bombing and strafing the enemy from the Normandy beachheads to 100 miles inside France. German reserves moving toward the battle scene were a particular target.

The enemy-controlled Vichy radio declared Marshal Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt had told his German troops to defend the Atlantic wall "to the last man," but nevertheless Berlin broadcasts conceded that in three days the Allies had steadily expanded the invasion bridgehead—while Axis sources said stretched from Valognes, near the tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, to a point north of Caen.

Caen Is Burning

A communique last night indicated a battle was in progress for Caen, 18 miles southeast of Bayeux and nine miles from the sea, but this morning's announcement made no further reference to the town.

Returning Allied fliers said Caen was burning. A German tank column counter-attacked in that area late Tuesday, but headquarters said the thrust was repulsed.

Airborne troops which came down behind the German lines have now made contact with the forces which went ashore from the naval invasion armada, the morning communique said.

The weather is definitely improving. It was announced here, but unloading on the beaches had to be halted at times yesterday because of rough waters. The lost time was almost made up by "superhuman efforts on the part of the landing craft crews," a spokesman said.

It was declared that the capture of Bayeux, a key road and rail junction between Caen and Cherbourg, was particularly important because troops advancing inland from there "have no rivers to cross as the rivers run north and south."

French Are Happy

The Drome river near the town provides a route that would help sever the peninsula and isolate the great port of Cherbourg—needed by the Allies to bring in heavy guns and equipment.

The French in Bayeux hysterically greeted the Allied soldiers with shouts of "on to Paris."

The Germans, declaring the Allies were making a supreme effort to capture all of Normandy in order to control the port of Cherbourg, said airborne landings were made yesterday at Falaise and Argentan, some 40 miles inland, with troops landing from 300 planes and gliders.

Supreme Headquarters made no mention of any landings this deep inside the continent, but returning fliers this morning said they appeared to be street fighting in Falaise—William the conqueror's birthplace and the capital of his Normandy.

For the third straight night American and British airborne troops dropped in great clouds. Jeeps, motorcycles and anti-tank guns were flown in to support the airborne attack—which means that the Allies either had captured an airfield in France or built one.

Old Foes Tangle

German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, once again contending with his old and victorious foe, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, threw an increasing number of tanks into his checking battles, but the Allies also were rolling lines of armor ashore and into the raging fighting back from the coast.

Both French natives and German prisoners revealed Hitler and Rommel recently toured the Atlantic

Daniel J. Wolff, former sheriff of Adams county, was most accurate among the 18 prominent residents of Gettysburg and Adams county asked by The Gettysburg Times last December 31 to guess the invasion date and say when they expected the war in Europe will be over.

Wolff, who was then a few days from the end of his four-year term as sheriff, said he believed the invasion would take place in June, "maybe on the 17th, my birthday."

The 18 guesses on the invasion date ranged from January 1 to 10 to Wolff's selection for the month of June. Guesses on the date for the end of the war in Europe ranged from May 1 of this year to November, 1945.

Dan Wolff's guess on the end of the European conflict was November of this year.

At Princeton he majored in theory and composition.

"According to Dick there is no quarrel between the two types of music. He says classical music is conceived on a different level from popular music and serves a different purpose."

Following the presentation of the show a critic said the following: "There have been loads of Army shows around here lately on stage and screen but not too many of them have given us the feeling that this is good, this is funny and this is really American. 'Rumor Has It' gave us that feeling quite often. The boys and girls behind the show made us want to wave a flag a lot more than any U. S. government short ever did. Let it go that it was a very fine evening in all and that we are proud of Co. D. and their 'Rumor Has It'."

The bride was attired in a powder blue crepe dress with white accessories and wore a corsage of orchids.

Following the ceremony the couple returned to Hanover and will make their home at 265 Frederick street. The bride is a graduate of the Cooper Hospital Training School for Nurses, Camden, New Jersey, and served as night superintendent of that institution for 11 years after her graduation.

The single ring ceremony of the Lutheran church was performed by the Rev. H. W. Sternat, pastor of the couple, in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends. The church was decorated with seasonal flowers and white carnations and delphinium in the altar vases.

The bride wore an ivory faille brocade gown with basque bodice, heart shaped neckline, long sleeves and full skirt falling into a train. The headress was a pearlized orange blossom coronet with cascade tulle finger tip veil. She carried a bridal shower bouquet of miniature white roses and gardenias.

Organ Recital

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. H. W. Sternat, organist, presented a fifteen-minute organ recital. The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," by Wagner, was used as the processional and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as the recessional.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, following which the couple left for a wedding trip to New York city. The bride's going away costume was a navy blue travel suit with white accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink and white rosebuds.

Shortage Of Paper Bags, Cartons Here

In a display advertisement in The Gettysburg Times today, 13 local grocers appeal to their patrons to help them meet the present shortage of paper bags and cartons by bringing their own baskets or used paper bags for future grocery orders.

We must appeal to our customers to help us meet this emergency. Save your paper bags and cartons and bring them along to your grocery store for your next supply of groceries."

Bayeux Falls

divisions were fighting on the peninsula.

Thundering naval support of the drive continued, and Allied airmen destroyed 102 Nazi planes yesterday.

Hungry French villagers greeted liberating troops with flags and kisses.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower used his airborne troops to the fullest, and an observer on a ship in the channel said at one time "the sky overhead became unbelievably crowded with aircraft. Four lanes of tow-plane traffic going each way spanned the channel."

The Germans likewise rushed in new strength, and Prime Minister Churchill warned against over-optimism, declaring "enormous exertions lie before us."

3 Days Of Fighting

Some of the troops have been fighting continuously since Tuesday morning, and it is likely there may be a short lull in advances as they rest, regroup, and bring up supplies.

Supreme Headquarters described the capture of Bayeux, five miles inland from the central Normandy coast and first French city to fall to the invaders, as "very important news" because it opens up avenues for a new advance deeper into France.

"Progress continues despite determined enemy resistance," said this morning's communique. "Fierce armored and infantry fighting has taken place."

A Berlin broadcast indicated south-bound Allied forces already had left Bayeux behind. This report said "hard fighting" still was in progress against an Allied group "which launched a thrust immediately south of Bayeux." Berlin identified the group as British and Canadian infantry and tank units.

Down 102 Planes

German aircraft began to appear in the battle areas in greater numbers. In the past 24 hours, headquarters announced, a total of 102 enemy planes were destroyed—82 in air combat and 20 on the ground. Allied air forces flew more than 9,000 sorties yesterday, bombing and strafing the enemy from the Normandy beachheads to 100 miles inland. German reserves moving toward the battle scene were a particular target.

The enemy-controlled Vichy radio declared Marshal Rndolf Gerd von Rundstedt had told his German troops to defend the Atlantic wall "to the last man," but nevertheless Berlin broadcasts alleged that in three days the Allies had steadily expanded the invasion bridgehead—while Axis sources said stretched from Valognes, near the tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, to a point north of Caen.

Caen Is Burning

A communique last night indicated a battle was in progress for Caen, 18 miles southeast of Bayeux and nine miles from the sea, but this morning's announcement made no further reference to the town.

Returning Allied fliers said Caen was burning. A German tank column counter-attacked in that area late Tuesday, but headquarters said the thrust was repulsed.

Airborne troops which came down behind the German lines have now made contact with the forces which went ashore from the naval invasion armada, the morning communique said.

The weather is definitely improving, it was announced here, but unloading on the beaches had to be halted at times yesterday because of rough waters. The last time was almost made up by "superhuman efforts on the part of the landing craft crews," a spokesman said.

It was declared that the capture of Bayeux, a key road and rail junction between Caen and Cherbourg, was particularly important because troops advancing inland from there "have no rivers to cross as the rivers run north and south."

French Are Happy

The Drome river near the town provides a route that would help sever the peninsula and isolate the great port of Cherbourg—needed by the Allies to bring in heavy guns and equipment.

The French in Bayeux hysterically greeted the Allied soldiers with shouts of "on to Paris."

The Germans, declaring the Allies were making a supreme effort to capture all of Normandy in order to control the port of Cherbourg, said airborne landings were made yesterday at Falaise and Argetan, some 40 miles inland, with troops landing from 300 planes and gliders.

Supreme Headquarters made no mention of any landings this deep inside the continent, but returning fliers this morning said there appeared to be street fighting in Falaise—William the conqueror's birthplace and the capital of his Normandy.

For the third straight night American and British airborne troops were used to pound the landing beaches ahead of troops.

"This was the first secret development learned from the Dieppe raid to be announced," a headquarters officer said. "There will be others later."

A continuing stream of German broadcasts included reports of house-to-house fighting in the village of Ste. Mere-Eglise, near the eastern shore of the Cherbourg peninsula; that the Germans had driven British parachute troops from the village of Varville, east of the Orne river, and that British tank forces last night were driving south along both banks of the Seulles river, which strikes between Caen and Bayeux.

DAN WOLFF WAS BEST GUESSEER

Daniel J. Wolff, former sheriff of Adams county, was most accurate among the 18 prominent residents of Gettysburg and Adams county asked by The Gettysburg Times last December 31 to guess the invasion date and say when they expected the war in Europe will be over.

Wolff, who was then a few days from the end of his four-year term as sheriff, said he believed the invasion would take place, in June "maybe on the 17th, my birthday."

The 18 guesses on the invasion date ranged from January 1 to 10 to Wolff's selection for the month of June. Guesses on the date for the end of the war in Europe ranged from May 1 of this year to November, 1945.

Dan Wolff's guess on the end of the European conflict was November of this year.

"DICK" THOMAS

Nine coeds and three men from Co. D are playing in it.

"A Princeton graduate, class of 1943, he was pianist for the show put on by the Princeton Triangle club in 1941. He played for dance orchestras in New York, Westchester county and Princeton while at school. All of his study and work has been in the field of classical music. At Princeton he majored in theory and composition.

Wins Critics' Praise
"According to Dick there is no quarrel between the two types of music. He says classical music is conceived on a different level from popular music and serves a different purpose."

Following the presentation of the show a critic said the following: "There have been loads of Army shows around here lately on stage and screen but not too many of them have given us the feeling that this is good, this is funny and this is really American. 'Rumor Has It' gave us that feeling quite often. The boys and girls behind the show made us want to wave a flag a lot more than any U. S. government short very fine did. Let it go that it was a very fine evening in all and that we are proud of Co. D, and their 'Rumor Has It.'"

An Evening Thought

Commonly they use their feet for defense, whose tongue is their weapon.—Sir P. Sidney

Just Folks

THE GENTLER SIDE
We see it gleaming, far and wide.
The evidence of hopes and dreams.
The proof man has a gentle side.
And would be better than he seems.

A red geranium set apart
Upon a narrow window sill
Voices the tenant's love of art.
Which drudgery has no power to kill.

Never a little garden gay
But what it tells in lovely phrase
Devotion true from day to day.
To beauty's soul-rewarding ways.

Windows with pretty curtains white.
Trimmed lawns and boxes filled
With flowers.
All bits of beauty and delight
Are proof of man's unselfish hours.

Though raiment must the body wear.
And food and fire must first be had.
With something of a tender care
Men keep the inner spirit clad.

Today's Talk

THE FLOATING SEED
Here, high in the air above the busy street of my city, with the window open, a seed has just floated in — a beautiful, tiny seed with a group of extended, hairlike filaments that look like a miniature feather duster. Softly it floated in, until it lighted upon my work desk. And this solitary seed perhaps but one of millions now floating around, awaiting some spot upon this earth to plant itself.

I looked at this wonder of nature and thought of the millions of seeds that now float about the earth, seeking a place to hide until the time for another flowering. I couldn't help but think that words, books, letters, kind deeds, are all like seeds that are set afloat, with some message of hope or encouragement — and never knowing where they may find an abiding place.

This tiny seed came to me with a message. It told of the great plan of the Creator, whose over-all thoughts and plans astound us the more we learn of them. Silently He runs the Universe, and on a perfect plan. No confusion — a place and time for everything. And what little we know we have adopted and adapted from this wonderful example of eternal planning. And how much more we could learn if we would but note and think!

This talk each day is somewhat like that tiny seed. Brief in itself it is planted in newspapers far and wide, with a fervent prayer at its inception that it may flower in some manner or other in people's lives like the candle that Shakespeare spoke about. It hopes for a team of light on which to travel far out into the world.

Right now the seed of Freedom are being waited around the world. Many a fertile soil will receive them that has never known Freedom before. May that day soon arrive when the entire earth shall be strewn with the seed of Freedom's seeds.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will take on the subject "The Broken Covenant."

RACIAL ISSUE GIVEN SUPPORT IN MISSISSIPPI

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

The south hoisted new Democratic storm signals today with Mississippi joining the ranks of states determined to commit the party to a stand for "white supremacy" and Georgia Democrats barring negroes from their July 4 primary.

Following almost exactly a pattern set previously by Texas Democrats, the anti-administration controlled Mississippi convention voted yesterday to instruct the party's 12 electors in the state to reject the Democratic Presidential nominee unless the national convention meets certain demands.

Present Demands
These demands, as outlined in resolutions adopted by the convention, were strongly reminiscent of those previously approved by Texas and South Carolina conventions. They included opposition to "anti-poll tax and racial equality plank in the platform. The resolutions also urged "a return of state's rights" and the restoration of the two-thirds nominating rule for national conventions.

The regular Texas Democratic convention previously had instructed that state's electors not to support the party nominee unless similar demands were fulfilled by the convention. South Carolina Democrats took the same course, except that they delayed choosing electors until after the national convention acts on the platform.

Because it seems obviously unlikely that the convention will restore the two thirds rule, the action by the three states threatened to shift from the regular Democratic nominee to bloc of electoral votes in areas where he virtually was assured of a large popular majority.

Negroes Denied Vote
In another offshoot of the "White Supremacy" issue, the Democratic State Executive subcommittee directed that Georgia party officials deny negroes the right to participate in that state's July 4 primary, in which interest will center on the bid of Senator Walter George for renomination.

The Georgia group held that the Supreme Court's opinion opening Texas Democratic primary to negroes does not affect Georgia because the latter's election rules are party-made and not set by statute.

In New Mexico, mounting returns showed the renomination of the state's two congressmen, Clinton P. Anderson and Antonio M. Fernandez, and Governor John J. Dempsey. They are Democrats. Carroll G. Gunderson, Republican, will oppose Dempsey, while Mayer Manuel Lujan and Ben F. Meyer won the Republican nominations for Congress.

At Washington, the Senate Campaign Expenditures committee meets to consider Republican denials of political activities committee, demands for an investigation of the Chairman Sidney Hillman of the latter group offered to appear for any inquiry that might be made and Senator Tammell (D-De) announced that if any investigation is ordered some Republican committees also may come under fire.

URGES SOYBEANS FOR HOG FEED

Farmers producing hogs should make every possible effort to maintain their breeding herds economically, and one suggestion from County Agent M. T. Hartman is to plant soybeans now for use by the hogs during next winter.

A matured brood sow requires about 1,000 pounds of feed for the six months needed to develop a litter of pigs. At the present price of feed, this makes a heavy expense, the county agent points out. One way to reduce the cost of feeding sows and also keep the animal in good health by furnishing the opportunity to exercise themselves is to grow a crop of soybeans and leave them in the field.

During winter, the sows can go into the fields and harvest the crop themselves. Vines furnish roughage needed in the rations, and the beans furnish a large part of the feed required to maintain them during winter months. The acreage to be planted for such uses depends on the fertility of the soil and yield of the bean.

Generally one acre will provide sufficient for three sows to harvest over the winter. The county agent reminds the farmers that to plant now for next winter serves a double purpose. In addition to providing a crop of cheap hog feed, the soybeans also requires little labor and no handing.

CITE CEILING ON FARM BUTTER

Housewives should pay no more than 41 cents for farm butter, the Harrisburg District Office of Price Administration announced today in response to many inquiries.

Farm butter churned by the producer of milk must be sold directly to the consumer. Federal and state regulations prohibiting the sale of this kind of butter through retail outlets. Creamery butter must bear the manufacturer's or distributor's name on each package.

Complaints have been received at the district OPA office that farm butter has been selling at from 52 to 60 cents a pound in some sections, in direct violation of OPA ceilings, according to A. P. Livingston, district OPA price executive.

Farm butter, according to reports, is also being sold point-free although it remains on the ration list at eight points. OPA enforcement agents are investigating this matter.

CONVENTION OF C. E. ON FRIDAY

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad's Chicago bound train, "The Golden Arrow," was halted for 74 minutes today while firemen fought an oil-grease fire in the understructure of the locomotive.

The blaze broke out less than 100 feet from the point at which the railroad's "Congressional Limited" was wrecked last Labor Day with 29 deaths. A company spokesman said mechanical trouble caused the locomotive brake shoes to stick on the wheels, creating excessive friction.

San Diego, Calif., June 7 (AP)—Names of 17 men killed in a Navy Liberator bomber crash at the Camp Kearny auxiliary air station on Kearny Mesa yesterday were reported tonight by the 11th Naval district. Twelve Navy men also were injured in the accident.

HARTMAN GIVES TIPS ON PASTURE

Bluegrass is well headed in Adams county and soon will be so high in fiber and low in protein that the cows will not touch it, county agent M. T. Hartman said today.

He suggests getting rid of the heads by clipping the pasture closely as soon as possible. Also only part of the pasture each day so that the cows will clean up the cured hay.

Orchard grass and tall oat grass in the triple-purpose pastures are heading also. Farmers whose pastures have been grazed since late April or early May will find un-eaten patches around old droppings which must be moved soon in order to maintain high productivity.

"Do not let the grasses produce seed if you want the highest production of pasture," County Agent Hartman says. "Clip some each day and let the cows clean it up, or make early-cut hay if there is enough of it or cut it into the silo. And remember when it is time to clip pastures, it is time to make silage or hay from triple-purpose pastures."

FIRE IN MINE
Washington, Pa., June 8 (AP)—Firemen today intensified efforts to extinguish a mine fire at the bottom of the 400-foot Chartiers shaft of the Emerald Coal & Coke Co. near Chartiers. Mine Superintendent T. M. Lamb said timber was ignited by a short circuit caused by a broken trolley wire last night.

A half-pound of steel wire used in magnetic sound recording is more than two miles long and records 65 minutes of sound.

Jaywalkers May Get New Penalty

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP)—Mayor, suggests Inspector Herbert F. Kitchennan, in charge of the Police Traffic bureau, jay-walkers who endanger their own lives should be treated like "attempted suicides."

EXPECT SEVERE INVASION TEST IN WEEK OR SO

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst
The great (and undoubtedly bloody) battle which is boiling up from the Allied invasion of the Cherbourg peninsula shows increasing signs of becoming an exceptional game of wits between those old rivals of the North African desert, Field Marshal Rommel and General Montgomery — two of the fastest thinking and quickest acting tacticians the war has produced.

One is prone to regard all battles as chess games—but the rule doesn't hold. Many are won by overwhelming strength without any finesse, as witness Hitler's early victories when he rode roughshod over a helpless Europe. But the battle of the peninsula will turn in no small degree on the acumen of those great soldiers, Montgomery and Rommel.

Fierce Fighting

Already the German local counter-attacks are under way and there is fierce fighting. However, Rommel seems to be moving cautiously. Of course, before he rushes a big army to the peninsula he must be sure that this is one of the major Allied thrusts and not merely a feint to draw his fire while the main attack is made elsewhere. Still, one feels that he's holding his hand pending the moment when he can do the most damage.

That may account in part for the lack of German air power on D-Day. The greatly depleted Luftwaffe is being held in reserve for crucial battles.

Rommel undoubtedly would like to get a big Allied force farther inland before his major counter-attack. He's an exponent of tank action, and favors conditions under which he can make quick maneuvers. He may try to force an open battle. That will suit Montgomery—providing the Allies have been able to put ashore sufficient men and equipment. It's a race against time.

May Cut Peninsula

Well, we should know more about it in another week or so, if the Allies continue to develop their landing. Apparently they're aiming to cut the whole peninsula off, thereby securing a superb base, made to order with the great port of Cherbourg and a main railroad and highways leading to Paris.

The Allied capture of the strategic rail and highway center of Bayeux, five miles inland from the central Normandy coast—a coup which Allied headquarters labels as "very important news"—will do much to expedite the conquest of the whole peninsula, and that means an advance deeper into France.

The situation is getting hotter on the peninsula and it should be emphasized again that bitter times are ahead. Some German reserves and tank units already have been flung into the action. The Luftwaffe also is beginning to show itself a bit.

What About Reds?

Many inquiries are coming to my desk as to why Russia hasn't attacked simultaneously with the western Allies. That's an interesting point—but there's no cause for anxiety or doubts. For reasons best known to itself, the Allied high command decided that the Red armies should do exactly what they are doing—sit tight for the moment. Russia is ready and will strike with terrific force at the agreed time. Meanwhile, her massed armies on the battle line are holding the Hitlerites glued to the spot.

Anyway, the thing that matters is that the "second front" on which the Russians have been insisting for three years is finally opened. It has caused an unprecedented war-time celebration in Moscow. And that's something, when we remember that the controversy over the second front was acute in 1942. Nothing could have done more to strengthen relations among the Big Three than the arrival of D-Day.

Churchill Warns Of "Over Optimism"

London, June 8 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill warned the House of Commons today to guard against "over optimism" in the battle of Europe and against "the idea that these things are going to be settled in a rush."

"Although great dangers lie behind," he declared, "enormous exertions lie before us."

The stream of news from invasion reporters temporarily deprived the stocky premier, once a journalist himself, of one of the roles he likes best—that of being able to give a first hand account of major developments—and he said he did not plan to make any statement on the invasion battles during the day "unless something exceptional turns up."

ROBBERY SUSPECT

Clarion, Pa., June 8 (AP)—District Attorney W. P. Geary of Clarion county said he expected to arraign Willis O. Wenner, 29-year-old Strattonville construction worker, today on robbery charges in connection with the holdup of the Sligo National bank Tuesday.

The Mason and Dixon Line actually was surveyed by two Englishmen, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, to settle discussions between Lord Baltimore and the Penn family, respective heads of Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Allies said German counter-attacks in the Caen area had been repulsed.

BADLY WOUNDED OFFICER URGES CARE OF FILM

By RUTH COWAN

At an Advanced U. S. Army Field Hospital on the Southern English Coast, June 8 (AP)—The young Signal Corps officer, his light brown hair dirty with sand, looked up from his cot in the pre-operative tent and appealed to Capt. Joseph Aprile of New York:

"Please, Doc, I've got some film. It's in my camera. It's important. Please—call headquarters in the European theater of operations. Tell them I did get some pictures before they got me."

"Yes, yes, captain," comforted the medical officer as he felt the man's faint pulse. This patient, one of a number back from the Allied assault on Europe, was to the trained medical eye "in shock."

"These numbers—please call them," insisted the young officer. He gave several telephone numbers clearly and coherently. Aprile was busy trying to save the man's life. His left foot had been blown off and he had a gunshot wound in his left forearm and a bit of high explosive fragment had gone through his right thigh. So the medical officer called in Adj. Lt. James Enger, Philadelphia, Pa.

Enger placed those telephone calls. Headquarters said it would send a plane to pick up that film.

"Bit of France"

The Signal Corps captain asked that his camera, picked up with him, be brought to his cot.

Sgt. Maj. John Cook, Lexington, Ky., took it to him. With the hand of his uninjured arm and with Cook holding the camera, he got the precious film. As he did some sand fell out.

"There," he said, "is a bit of France."

A few hours later the film was on its way to headquarters. But the captain wasn't satisfied. There are a few other messages. Would Aprile see that they got through?

"Please tell them I'm sorry I let them down, but the Germans got my leg," he said.

He recommended that the first lieutenant of his outfit be put in command of his company. Then he added:

"Doc, you had better hurry up and get me out of here so I can go back."

A Signal Corps card that had traveled with him from the time he was picked up on the far shore showed that en route to the field hospital he had had—possibly aboard a Navy vessel—two units of blood plasma and two units of fresh blood.

PHILIPPINES NOW WITHIN BOMBER RANGE

By WILLIAM PHIPPS

Associated Press War Editor
Gen. Douglas MacArthur owned an airbase today within bomber range of the Philippines—the Allies' first since Japan's steamroller crushed them back against Australia early in the Pacific war.

Toughened American invaders of Biak, largest island of the Schouten group off Dutch New Guinea, outsmarted the Japanese defenders to grab Mokmer airdrome after 12 days of savage fighting. Mokmer is only 880 miles southeast of the Philippines.

Announcement of the Yanks' Mokmer triumph highlighted Japanese setbacks in every Pacific theater except central China where fierce Chinese resistance was being overcome around Changsha.

This key Hankow-Canton railway center in Hunan province was being strangled slowly by six Japanese spearheads in a drive to split China from north to south.

Japs Flee Kohima

But the Chinese pressed ahead of the Salween river front in their thrust through Yunnan province toward Burma where other Allied forces are fighting to link the Burma and Ledo roads. In India, Allied troops pursued Japanese fleeing the Kohima area.

American fliers, striking from Central Pacific bases, carried new attacks to Guam, pre-war U. S. naval base 1,595 miles east of Manila, to Nauru and Ponape.

Possession of Mokmer airdrome came in a sudden drive which outflanked the Japanese. Held up on the coastal road west of their Bosnek beachhead, MacArthur's infantry threw a column inland and stormed Mokmer from behind. American losses were light, the communique said.

With Mokmer secured, the Yanks mounted a new assault toward Biak's other airfields—Borokoe, two miles west and a mile inland, and Orido, three and one-half miles west on the coast.

SHOW GOES ON

Hazleton, Pa., June 8 (AP)—Rather than interrupt the Hazleton high school senior play, Gerald Hassel continued in his role last night although he knew his mother, Mrs. Lottie Vera Hassel, had died as she watched from her seat in the audience.

About 17 million women in the United States are employed.

Demoted

Lt. Col. Henry J. F. Miller (above), a native of Salem, N. J., an Air Force officer formerly stationed in England, has been demoted from his temporary rank of major general to the permanent rank of lieutenant colonel and sent home for indicating in advance the time of the invasion D-day, the War Department has announced.

EISENHOWER HAS PRAISE FOR MEN

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8 (AP)—General Eisenhower declared today his "complete confidence in the ability of the Allied armies, navies and airforces to do all they are asked to do has been completely justified."

"In the early landing operations which are always naval, the two Allied navies—together with elements of heavy units of the United Nations—under Admiral Ramsay have excelled, in the high standard of their planning and their execution, any prior venture in which I have seen them engaged," General Eisenhower said.

"The long and brilliant campaign conducted in the past month by the combined air forces, including the commands of Air Chief Marshal Harris, General Spaatz and Air Chief Marshal Leigh Mallory was an essential preliminary to the undertaking of the operation and has proved its effectiveness by the fact that the landing was made as planned. Their good work is continuing."

"General Montgomery is in immediate and direct charge of all the assault ground forces. Under him all the troops are performing magnificently."

PRaised BY MARTIN

Harrisburg, June 8 (AP)—War-time services of the nation's communications system were praised by Governor Martin last night at a dinner at which the National Security award of the Office of Civilian Defense for outstanding plant protection was presented to the Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania.

In Lead

Lt. Abe Condiotti (above), USNR, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was in command of what an eyewitness said was the first boat to land on the French invasion coast, grounding his landing craft within 60 seconds of "H-hour" in the Allied invasion of France. (AP Wirephoto from U. S. Navy.)

GIANTS SPANK
BRAVES; YANKS
DEFEATED 8 TO 1

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer
Mel Ott continued to lift the Giants by his bootstraps, and the Chicago White Sox began to cast their shadow across the American league standings today as baseball swung back into normal stride.

Ott counted two more home runs, lifting his season production to 14, as the Giants pummeled Al Javery and the Boston Braves last night, 8-2, behind the four-hit chucking of Harry Feldman.

Nap Reyes and Phil Weintraub joined Ott in the Polo Ground slugfest with one round tripper each, and Butch Nieman ruined Feldman's bid for a shutout with a two-run wallop in the seventh.

Jimmy Dykes' White Sox stretched their win streak to seven by downing Detroit, 3-1, in another night game. The Sox are only a half game behind the third-place Tigers, and only three and a half behind the leading St. Louis Browns.

Grove Wins Fifth
Orval Grove captured his fifth victory at the expense of Hal Newhouser, whose bid for win No. 9 resulted in loss No. 4, when he walked Grove with the bases loaded to force in the tie-breaking run.

Boston sent the New York Yankees reeling back under another setback, 8-1, as Tex Hughson grabbed his seventh decision and Boss Joe Cronin led the attack with a double and homer. Hank Borowy suffered his second setback of the campaign, facing after the fifth inning.

Rip Sewell ran his victory string to seven by stopping Cincinnati, 4-2, on Vince DiMaggio's single in the eighth, which drove home Johnny Barrett and Jim Russell. The Pittsburgh "blooper ball" tosser lost two of his first three starts, but hasn't been beaten since May 3 while winning seven.

The Phillies came from behind twice to top Brooklyn in the ninth, 6-5, when Jimmy Wasdell, an ex Dodger, singled home Tony Lupien after Ray Hamrick had scored the tying run on Rube Melton's wild pitch.

St. Louis and Chicago in the National and Washington, Philadelphia, Cleveland and St. Louis in the American were not scheduled.

Legion Baseball

For Pittsburgh

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP)—Pittsburgh returns this year to the American Legion baseball tournament under new plans announced by Chairman George A. Ballis.

Ballis announced also that Philadelphia will have two leagues, the playoff winner to meet the champion of a six-team circuit including the Keystone Juniors of Reading, Coplay, Bethlehem, Catasauque, Emmaus and Fountain Hill.

Phils To Conduct

Baseball Tryouts

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP)—The National league Phillies will conduct a tryout camp June 15-17 at Bethlehem, Pa.

Aiding Coach Cy Morgan in the talent search will be Al Julian, Muhlenberg college coach; Johnny Butler, Bethlehem high school coach; Ed Caraway, Lehigh University athletic director; Birney Crum, Allentown high school coach; and Jack Collins of the Phillies staff.

Cernugel Elected

Mechanicsburg Coach

The Mechanicsburg school board, at its monthly meeting Tuesday night, elected a football and basketball coach, who will also teach physical education.

The board elected Anthony (Tony) Cernugel, former Steelton high school and North Carolina university gridiron star as head coach to succeed Gray Furey, resigned. Cernugel has been coaching at High Point, North Carolina, for the past five years.

Mrs. Wucherer To

Be Sentenced Friday

Norristown, Pa., June 3 (AP)—Mrs. Helen M. Wucherer, convicted of second degree murder in the shooting of her husband, August, last October 31, is to be sentenced tomorrow.

The 44-year-old woman's plea for a new trial was refused yesterday by the Montgomery county Common Pleas court. Her attorney said an appeal would be taken to the State Superior court after sentence is imposed.

Maximum penalty for the offense is 10 to 20 years imprisonment but women normally receive indeterminate sentences.

ELECT OFFICERS

Pittsburgh, June 3 (AP)—James F. Malone was elected Allegheny county Republican chairman last night, succeeding County Commissioner John S. Herron, who had announced he would retire. Mrs. Nellie G. Dressler, vice chairman, and Raymond D. Evans, treasurer, were re-elected.

SPORTS
ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 3 (AP)—It's a long way from the football season but apparently it's the open season on football teams and players in the Pacific coast.

Reports trickling east so far indicate that Bill Freebody, who broke into pro football as water boy for the Washington Redskins when they first went west, has distributed at least six franchises in his newly-formed American league and three of the cities already were occupied by the Pacific Coast pro league.

The airborne "mystery" league, figuring on no fewer than four West Coast clubs, will be ready to go after the war, Bill (Ex-Phil) Cox reported on a recent visit to Seattle.

A number of others, especially in the northwest, are ready to go and one of the latest reports is that Dutch Clark may sign to coach the Seattle American league club.

The National league hasn't quit on the west coast, even though actor Don Ameche has decided he likes horses better than footballers (they, even at $55 a ton, is cheaper than steaks).

Well, it ought to be a merry little scrap.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Joe Goetz, Patterson, N. J., Evening News: "Roy Vangraffen, veteran international league umpire who has been a holdout since the beginning of the baseball season, finally came to terms with Frank Shaughnessy, league president."

Who ever heard of an umpire expecting more money for calling a strike?

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Jackie Hayes, former White Sox second baseman forced to retire from baseball in 1940 because of an eye ailment, has become totally blind. He recently obtained a seeing eye dog.

Nobody at West Point will say so, but football folks there give the impression they don't expect to play the 1944 Army-Navy game in the seclusion of either Annapolis or West Point.

The Iowa State high school baseball tournament, shifted from Manson (pop. 1,232) to Fort Dodge (pop. 21,805) this year because of flood conditions, failed to meet expenses for the first time.

Celestino Garcia, former middleweight champ, is working for a railroad in Los Angeles—just to pass the time away. He owns property and has some cash in the till.

SERVICE DEPT.

Lieut. Glenn Dobbs, ex-Tulsa U. passing ace, is heading for a new post at Colorado Springs, where the Second air force will have football headquarters, and won't be joining John Kimbrough and Bill Dudley at Randolph Field.

Lieut. Col. Francois D'Eliseu, who was awarded a degree of Doctor of Education "in absentia" at New York University's commencement yesterday, left his studies and his wrestling coach's job at N. Y. U. before he had written his final thesis. After winning the Silver Star and Purple Heart in the Pacific, D'Eliseu returned to Fort Benning where he lectured on combat training. The professors decided the lecture would be okay as a thesis.

M'SPADEN AND NELSON PICKED
IN GOLF CLASH

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP)—Harold (Jug) McSpaden and Byron Nelson, two golfing gentlemen whose 1944 earnings have replenished the United States Treasury to a remarkable extent, were co-favorites in practically anybody's book today as they and 136 others prepared to open the first annual $17,500 War Bond amateur tournament.

But you wouldn't have thought so to hear either of them tell it. "I can get a 70 today," sighed the rosy-cheeked Nelson, 1939 National Open and 1940 PGA Champion, "then I suppose I will have a chance. But I haven't been doing as well as I would like in previous rounds. I've been having trouble on the fairways and my putts haven't been dropping right."

McSpaden, who has won $13,460 in war bonds to Nelson's $11,290 this year, wasn't even happy that his 73 in a scabber match yesterday was one stroke better than his rival did. "I don't like to play too well right before a big tournament," the Philadelphia country club pro insisted.

Wood Is Silent

Handsome Craig Wood, duration U. S. Open finalist, was noncommittal about his own chances. "I am playing fairly well but have played better," said the immaculately groomed entrant from Manassas, New York, as he looked over the Torrance-Frankford county club course.

All told, five Open champions five PGA titleholders and six Canadian Open winners are seeking the $6,700 first prize in the tournament, which is sponsored by Philadelphia Inquirer Charles E. Inc. Like the National Open, the four-day tournament will be played over 72 holes of medal scoring.

Army Sergeant Vic Ghezzi, stationed at Atlantic City, New Jersey, was the standout golfer in yesterday's pro-amateur handicap division. His 67 equalled McSpaden's low score for the three days of preliminary events.

Williams Beats

Sammy Angott

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP)—Williams, winner over Sammy Angott by a split 10-round decision last night, will meet Juan Zurita for the NBA lightweight title within the next three months if Connie McCarthy, Williams' manager, has his way.

McCarthy said he plans to visit Abe Greene, president of the NBA, in a few days and request that the NBA chief order Zurita to defend his NBA title within the 90 days. As Williams is regarded as the logical contender, McCarthy believes that will result in a Zurita-Williams match and he's confident a Williams victory.

A crowd of 14,811 that contributed to a gross of $16,205 braved chilly weather to watch last night's fight inaugurate Philadelphia's outdoor boxing season at Shibe Park. Williams weighed 134½ to Angott's

An Evening Thought
Commonly they use their feet for defense, whose tongue is their weapon.—Sir P. Sidney.

Just Folks
THE GENTLER SIDE
We see it gleaming, far and wide. The evidence of hopes and dreams. The proof man has a gentle side. And would be better than he seems.

A red geranium set apart
Upon a narrow window sill
Voices the tenant's love of art.
Which drudgery has no power to kill.

Never a little garden gay
But what it tells in lovely phrase.
Devotion true from day to day.
To beauty's soul-rewarding ways.

Windows with pretty curtains white.
Trimmed lawns and boxes filled
With flowers.
All bits of beauty and delight
Are proof of man's unselfish hours.

Though raiment must the body wear,
And food and fire must first be had.
With something of a tenderer care
Men keep the inner spirit clad.

Today's Talk
THE FLOATING SEED

Here, high in the air above the busy street of my city, with the window open, a seed has just floated in — a beautiful, tiny seed with a group of extended, hairlike filaments that look like a miniature feather duster. Softly it floated in, until it lit upon my work desk. And this solitary seed, perhaps but one of millions now floating around, awaiting some spot upon this earth to plant itself.

I looked at this wonder of nature and thought of the millions of seeds that now float about the earth, seeking a place to hide until the time for another flowering. I couldn't help but think that words, books, letters, kind deeds, are all like seeds that are set afloat, with some message of hope or encouragement — and never knowing where they may find an abiding place.

This tiny seed came to me with a message. It told of the great plan of the Creator, whose over-all thoughts and plans astound us the more we learn of them. Silently He runs the Universe, and on a perfect plan. No confusion — a place and time for everything. And what little we know we have adopted and adapted from this wondrous example of eternal planning. And how much more we could learn if we would but note and think!

This talk each day is somewhat like that tiny seed. Brief, in itself, it is planted in newspapers, far and wide, with a fervent prayer at its inception that it may flower in some manner or other in people's lives. Like the candle that Shakespeare spoke about, it hopes for a beam of light on which to travel far out into the world.

Right now the seeds of Freedom are being wafted around the world. Many a fertile soil will receive them that has never known Freedom before. May that day soon arrive when the entire earth shall be strewn with the flowering of Freedom's seeds!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Blessed Objective."

Report Casualties In Italian Drive

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson reported today that a recent three-day period of heavy fighting preceding the fall of Rome cost American forces in Italy 2,379 casualties.

American casualties in the Italian campaign from the landings last September to May 30 amounted to 57,529, Stimson said.

Of these 9,964 were killed, 38,554 wounded and 9,011 missing.

RACIAL ISSUE GIVEN SUPPORT IN MISSISSIPPI

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

The south hoisted new Democratic storm signals today with Mississippi joining the ranks of states determined to commit the party to a stand for "white supremacy" and Georgia Democrats baring negroes from their July 4 primary.

Following almost exactly a pattern set previously by Texas Democrats, the anti-administration controlled Mississippi convention voted yesterday to instruct the party's 12 electors in the state to reject the Democratic Presidential nominee unless the national convention meets certain demands.

Present Demands
These demands, as outlined in resolutions adopted by the convention, were strongly reminiscent of those previously approved by Texas and South Carolina conventions. They included opposition to "anti-poll tax and racial equality plans" also urged "a return of state's rights" and the restoration of the two-thirds nominating rule for national conventions.

The regular Texas Democratic convention previously had instructed that state's electors not to support the party nominee unless similar demands were fulfilled by the convention. South Carolina Democrats took the same course, except that they delayed choosing electors until after the national convention acts on the platform.

Because it seems obviously unlikely that the convention will restore the two thirds rule, the action by the three states threatened to shift from the regular Democratic nominee to bloc of electoral votes in areas where he virtually was assured of a large popular majority.

Negroes Denied Vote
In another offshoot of the "White Supremacy" issue, the Democratic State Executive subcommittee directed that Georgia party officials deny negroes the right to participate in that state's July 4 primary, in which interest will center on the bid of Senator Walter George for renomination.

The Georgia group held that the Supreme Court's opinion opening Texas Democratic primary to negroes does not affect Georgia because the latter's election rules are party-made and not by statute. In New Mexico, mounting returns showed the renomination of the state's two congressmen, Clinton P. Anderson and Antonio M. Fernandez, and Governor John J. Dempsey. They are Democrats. Carroll G. Gunderson, Republican, will oppose Dempsey, while Mayer Manuel Lujan and Ben F. Meyer won the Republican nominations for Congress.

At Washington, the Senate Campaign Expenditures committee meets to consider Republican de-IO Political Activities committee, demands for an investigation of the Chairman Sidney Hillman of the latter group offered to appear for any inquiry that might be made and Senator Tunnell (D-De.) announced that if any investigation is ordered some Republican committees also may come under fire.

URGES SOYBEANS FOR HOG FEED

Farmers producing hogs should make every possible effort to maintain their breeding herds economically, and one suggestion from County Agent M. T. Hartman is to plant soybeans now for use by the hogs during next winter.

A matured brood sow requires about 1,000 pounds of feed for the six months needed to develop a litter of pigs. At the present price of feed, this makes a heavy expense, the county agent points out. One way to reduce the cost of feeding sows and also keep the animal in good health by furnishing the opportunity to exercise themselves is to grow a crop of soybeans and leave them in the field.

During winter, the sows can go into the fields and harvest the crop themselves. Vines furnish roughage needed in the rations, and the beans furnish a large part of the feed required to maintain them during winter months. The acreage to be planted for such uses depends on the fertility of the soil and yield of the bean.

Generally one acre will provide sufficient for three sows to harvest over the winter. The county agent reminds the farmers that to plant now for next winter serves a double purpose. In addition to providing a crop of cheap hog feed, the soybeans also requires little labor and no handling.

CITE CEILING ON FARM BUTTER

Housewives should pay no more than 41 cents for farm butter, the Harrisburg District Office of Price Administration announced today in response to many inquiries.

Farm butter churned by the producer of milk must be sold directly to the consumer, federal and state regulations prohibiting the sale of this kind of butter through retail outlets. Creamery butter must bear the manufacturer's or distributor's name on each package.

Complaints have been received at the district OPA office that farm butter has been selling at from 52 to 60 cents a pound in some sections, in direct violation of OPA ceilings, according to A. P. Livingston, district OPA price executive.

Farm butter, according to reports, is also being sold point-free although it remains on the ration list at eight points. OPA enforcement agents are investigating this matter.

HARTMAN GIVES TIPS ON PASTURE

Bluegrass is well headed in Adams county and soon will be so high in fiber and low in protein that the cows will not touch it, county agent M. T. Hartman said today.

He suggests getting rid of the heads by clipping the pasture closely as soon as possible. Mow only part of the pasture each day so that the cows will clean up the cured hay.

Orchard grass and tall oat grass in the triple-purpose pastures are heading also. Farmers whose pastures have been grazed since late April or early May will find un-eaten patches around old droppings which must be mowed soon in order to maintain high productivity.

"Do not let the grasses produce seed if you want the highest production of pasture," County Agent Hartman says. "Clip some each day and let the cows clean it up, or make early-cut hay if there is enough of it, or cut it into the silo. And, remember when it is time to clip pastures, it is time to make silage or hay from triple-purpose pastures."

Prunes

Washington, Pa., June 8 (AP)—Firemen today intensified efforts to extinguish a mine fire at the bottom of the 400-foot Chartiers shaft of the Emerald Coal & Coke Co., near Chartiers. Mine Superintendent T. M. Lamb said timber was ignited by a short circuit caused by a broken trolley wire last night.

A half-pound of steel wire used in magnetic sound recording is more than two miles long and records 66 minutes of sound.

Train Delayed By Oil-Grease Blaze

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad's Chicago bound train, "The Golden Arrow," was halted for 74 minutes today while firemen fought an oil-grease fire in the understructure of the locomotive.

The blaze broke out less than 100 feet from the point at which the railroad's "Congressional Limited" was wrecked last Labor Day with 79 deaths. A company spokesman said mechanical trouble caused the locomotive brake shoes to stick on the wheels, creating excessive friction.

San Diego, Calif., June 7 (AP)—Names of 17 men killed in a Navy Liberator bomber crash at the Camp Kearney auxiliary air station on Kearney Mesa yesterday were reported tonight by the 11th Naval district. Twelve Navy men also were injured in the accident.

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP)—Mayor, suggests Inspector Herbert F. Kitchenman, in charge of the Police Traffic bureau, Jay-walkers who endanger their own lives should be treated like attempted suicides.

FLIERS SMASH
MANY TARGETS
ON BEACHHEAD

By W. W. HERCHER

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8 (AP)—A powerful force of 750 to 1,000 American heavy bombers swept a wide area of south Normandy early today, smashing bridges, airfields and railroad yards and junctions in a vigorous effort to clamp an air seal on the beachhead battlefield.

While Fortresses and Liberators, in the biggest aerial operation of the third day of the invasion, hit hard at installations from 100 to 150 miles behind the front, raiders began the day of battle with a dawn attack on Caen.

The twin-engined mediums left the city on the main railway between Cherbourg to Paris, burning with at least 20 fires from an attack at 4,500 feet.

These blows followed RAF strikes last night in which a series of rail targets near Paris and German transport 12 miles behind the invasion coast were riddled with heavy charges of bombs. The transport target was a concentration in the forest of Cerisy where the road runs from Baveux to St. Lo.

Allied planes of all descriptions had flown 22,000 sorties in the last 48 hours and air operations were mounting today as weather improved.

Thunderbolt and Lightning fighters er-bombers since 6 p. m. yesterday flew 50 continuously that they stopped only to refuel and re-arm between flights, setting out on new missions without waiting to repair bullet holes in their wings.

Among the fighter-bomber targets hit were 15 bridges and a chateau used as a German headquarters.

More than 2,000 of the 9,000 sorties flown by the Allies in the 24 hours ending at midnight were made by these fighter-bombers which shot down six enemy aircraft and lost 21 of their own number.

A total of 144 German planes had been knocked down in the last 48 hours, and 20 others destroyed on the ground. The last tabulation showed the Allies had lost 119 aircraft, but Supreme Headquarters was not attempting to keep an up to the minute tabulation and was leaving the announcements of losses to the individual commands.

Nazi night fighters stalked the British formations and scored their biggest kill of the invasion, knocking down 29 of the RAF big bombers.

Targets attacked today by the heavies, which carried out two missions yesterday, were located roughly in the regions of the Chateau-Dun, Lemans, Rennes, Nantes and Tours, all large French towns and strategic communication points. They were accompanied by about 500 Mustangs, Lightnings and Thunderbolts.

Besides the dawn attack on Caen, the Marauders went to Messy, Pontaubault, Valognes and St. Lo on the Cherbourg peninsula for other assaults, while Havocs pounded Periers and Baveux du Puits.

The Air Ministry said the well

hidden Cerisy wood targets was of great tactical importance and had to be attacked at low level because of 7,000 foot clouds.

Other RAF formations attacked the German city of Cologne at the crossing of the Rhine and laid mines.

The pattern of attack for RAF medium bombers changed last night to operations against six railroad stations south and west of Caen where the enemy was observed detaining during the daylight.

Eleven victories over enemy aircraft were reported by the night raiders. Eighty-two German planes were destroyed in the air and 20 on the ground during daylight yesterday as Allied planes flying more than 9,000 sorties bombed and strafed the Germans on the Normandy beachheads and penetrated 100 miles inland.

The weather was better for aerial operations today than it had been since the invasion started. Visibility was limited by haze and light mist as the first raiders headed toward the Pas-de-Calais area of the French coast but the skies cleared later.

The Germans were putting up a stiffer fight in the air than they had previously. It was announced that small formations of Nazi planes had attacked Allied troops on the beaches yesterday for the first time, and the Air Ministry said that big British Lancasters and Halifaxes had encountered more enemy fighters than usual last night.

The Paris area rail junctions of Acheres, Versailles, Massy-Palaiseau and Juvisy were hit by the night raiders in operations having the announced purpose of delaying German east-west military traffic.

The German radio said today major Allied air attacks had been made against Lorient and Nantes on the west coast of France in the early morning hours today.

Hornell Spurring Under New Manager

Buffalo, N. Y., June 8 (AP)—The Hornell Pirates, in the Pony League cellar only a week ago when their manager Charles (Dutch) Schesler resigned "for the good of the team," have been climbing steadily since and last night moved into third place with a 6-5 win over Batavia.

In the first game under the guidance of their new manager, Frank Parenti, the Pirates trailed Batavia 2-0 into the eighth inning, when they rallied for six runs to Batavia's three.

The first-place Lockport Cubs won the opener of a three-game series with the Wellsville Yankees 12-5. Travis Howard scored the first Lockport homer of the season in the fifth with one on, and the Cubs chalked up seven runs in the sixth on two hits and five walks.

Bradford pitcher Stark held the Jamestown Falcons scoreless for six innings, paving the way for a 14-6 triumph for the Blue Wings. Erie at Olean was postponed.

GIANTS SPANK BRAVES; YANKS DEFEATED 8 TO 1

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer
Mel Ott continued to lift the Giants by his bootstraps, and the Chicago White Sox began to cast their shadow across the American league standings today as baseball swung back into normal stride.

Ott clouted two more home runs, lifting his season production to 14, as the Giants pummeled Al Javery and the Boston Braves last night, 6-2, behind the four-hit chucking of Harry Feldman.

Nap Reyes and Phil Weintraub joined Ott in the Polo Ground slugfest with one round tripper each, and Butch Nieman ruined Feldman's bid for a shutout with a two-run wallop in the seventh.

Jimmy Dykes' White Sox stretched their win streak to seven by downing Detroit, 3-1, in another night game. The Sox are only a half game behind the third-place Tigers, and only three and a half behind the leading St. Louis Browns.

Grove Wins Fifth
Orval Grove captured his fifth victory at the expense of Hal Newhouser, whose bid for win No. 9 resulted in loss No. 4, when he walked Grove with the bases loaded to force in the tie-breaking run.

Boston sent the New York Yankees reeling back under another setback, 8-1, as Tex Hughson grabbed his seventh decision and Boss Joe Cronin led the attack with a double and homer. Hank Borowy suffered his second setback of the campaign, fading after the fifth inning.

Rip Sewell ran his victory string to seven by stopping Cincinnati, 4-2, on Vince DiMaggio's single in the eighth, which drove home Johnny Barrett and Jim Russell.

The Pittsburgh "blooper ball" tossed two of his first three starts, but hasn't been beaten since May 3 while winning seven.

The Phillies came from behind twice to top Brooklyn in the ninth, 6-5, when Jimmy Wasdell, an ex Dodger, singled home Tony Lupien after Ray Hamrick had scored the tying run on Rube Melton's wild pitch.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 8 (AP)—It's a long way from the football season but apparently it's the open season on football teams and players on the Pacific coast . . . Reports trickling east so far indicate that Bill Free-love, who broke into pro football as water boy for the Washington Redskins when they first went west, has distributed at least six franchises in his newly-formed American league and three of the cities already were occupied by the Pacific Coast pro league . . . The airborne "mystery" league, figuring on no fewer than four West Coast clubs, will be ready to go after the war, Bill (Ex-Phillie) Cox reported on a recent visit to Seattle . . . A number of others, especially in the northwest, are ready to go and one of the latest reports is that Dutch Clark may sign to coach the Seattle American league club . . . The National league hasn't quit on the west coast, even though actor Don Ameche has decided he likes horses better than footballers (hey, even at $55 a ton, is cheaper than steak) . . . Well, it ought to be a merry little scrap.

Jackie Hayes, former White Sox second baseman forced to retire from baseball in 1940 because of an eye ailment, has become totally blind. He recently obtained a seeing eye dog . . . The Iowa State high school baseball tournament, shifted from Manson (pop. 21,895) to Fort Dodge (pop. 21,895) this year because of flood conditions, failed to meet expenses for the first time . . . EMMITSBURG PRIEST MARKS SILVER JUBILEE

The Rev. Francis L. Rogers, C.M., as he went through the familiar liturgy of the mass at 8 o'clock this morning at St. Euphemia's church, Emmitsburg, was celebrating the 25th anniversary of his ordination as a priest of the Roman Catholic church.

One quarter of a century from the time his bishop pronounced the words, "Tu es sacerdos in aeternum," (Thou art a priest forever), the Rev. Father Rogers marked the day with no particular solemnity—feeling that a quarter century of quiet work of ministering to his congregations was sufficient in itself without undo celebration.

But his parishioners and hundreds of non-Catholic friends in the community of Emmitsburg felt otherwise and last Sunday started a week's celebration of the anniversary that "really was a surprise—I never suspected anything," Father Rogers says.

Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Emmitsburg pastor was invited to the Catholic school—the children, he was told, "are having their annual pageant." He found not only that the children were having a pageant and that it was being held in his honor—but that innumerable friends had brought gifts and were there to congratulate him on the anniversary.

Formal Observance
Next Sunday the celebration will be continued in connection with the feast of Corpus Christi. A solemn high mass will be sung at 10 o'clock in the morning. Rev. Fr. John J. Clonan, C.M., will preach the sermon. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the annual solemn procession will be held followed by Benediction, all to be held out-of-doors on the church grounds.

The fondness the Emmitsburg residents have for the Catholic pastor is more than reciprocated on his part. Emmitsburg, he declares, "is the finest place on the face of the earth. The people lead the finest lives of any group of persons. Protestants and Catholics are more cooperative than anywhere else."

Old Parish
The Catholic church, built 102 years ago is of Italian renaissance architecture. The priest quoted an architect as saying, "I've seen churches everywhere but the finest is the one at Emmitsburg."

"The church, beautiful on the outside, is just as perfect inside," says Father Rogers, and he gives the congregation all credit for keeping it that way.

The Emmitsburg pastor has been rector at the church there for the last five years and was stationed at Emmitsburg for nine years as assistant pastor starting 20 years ago.

After his ordination he served first at Germanstown, then at Utica, New York. His third station was at Emmitsburg from 1923 to 1932. From there he was stationed at a seminary in Princeton, New Jersey until 1936, when he was moved to Baltimore, from 1936 to 1939, before being "sent back home" to Emmitsburg, as he expresses it.

The parish at Emmitsburg is 151

years old and has had a school connected with it for nearly that length of time.

Close Cooperation

As proof of the cooperativeness of everyone in Emmitsburg, he cites the case of the Rev. Philip Bower, Emmitsburg Lutheran pastor, and the manager of the Emmitsburg theater. On Tuesday, when the invasion began, Father Rogers called the Rev. Mr. Bowers. It was decided to ask the theater manager to close the theater there for the evening because of services to be held in the churches Tuesday evening to pray for the men in the invasion forces. Since the theater manager was a parishioner of the Rev. Mr. Bowers, he asked the manager what he thought of the idea.

The result was that the show was closed in tribute to the men in the armed forces and the citizens of the town attended church services.

As another example of cooperativeness in the parish—there are never any special collections, with the regular collections at Sunday masses sufficing and no collections taken at Sunday evening services or otherwise.

Builds New Wall

"The parishioners are truly wonderful," Father Rogers says, "simply have to tell them what is needed and they provide. It is time for the coal collection or for a collection for insurance for the church, school and rectory. I simply announce that next Sunday the collection will be held and they supply all that is needed."

Another example of cooperation, "and the wonderful spirit of Emmitsburg," Father Rogers adds, is the way in which the limestone wall is being built around the front of the church and back to the school. The five hundred feet of wall will cost about $2,500. To raise money Father Rogers gives certificates for each $5 contribution to buy one foot of wall.

"Why even our non-Catholic friends are helping to build the wall by buying certificates," Father Rogers adds, "they seem to really enjoy helping us."

The Emmitsburg priest when interviewed by a reporter for The Gettysburg Times spent little time in selling about himself, or his priestly labors. In a few brief words he told his story—but he talked long of his friends, of the sisters who do "a marvelous job" at the school, of the kindness of everyone in Emmitsburg, of the "splendid" town commissioners, of the "truly Christian" nature of the people of the community, of the "true Catholicism" of the parishioners and the way in which they love their church and their duties.

Old Parish

The Catholic church, built 102 years ago is of Italian renaissance architecture. The priest quoted an architect as saying, "I've seen churches everywhere but the finest is the one at Emmitsburg."

"The church, beautiful on the outside, is just as perfect inside," says Father Rogers, and he gives the congregation all credit for keeping it that way.

The Emmitsburg pastor has been rector at the church there for the last five years and was stationed at Emmitsburg for nine years as assistant pastor starting 20 years ago.

After his ordination he served first at Germanstown, then at Utica, New York. His third station was at Emmitsburg from 1923 to 1932. From there he was stationed at a seminary in Princeton, New Jersey until 1936, when he was moved to Baltimore, from 1936 to 1939, before being "sent back home" to Emmitsburg, as he expresses it.

Story Of Founding Of Historic Emmitsburg, Maryland

By JAMES A. HELMAN

Stone Cutters

James Kelly lived south of the college. He did all of the marble work here until Frederick Meals came here from Gettysburg in 1860. Later U. A. Lough, who owned the M. F. Shuff property, W. H. Hoke, Charles Hoke and A. Annan were stonecutters here, with Charles Hoke later forming the firm of Hoke and Rider. We understand why so many early graves were unmarked. The stone cutters were few in the early days and there were no opportunities to obtain stones. As to price, the cost must have been great, because even men of means had very small tombstones.

At one time a large post stood on the curb in the pavement of Lewis Street, a beam poised in a slot on either side had a square platform to which was attached chains from the four corners, then centering on the end of the beam. It was a balance scale; 50 pound weights and smaller stood by for use in weighing iron and heavy articles. This was the scale before platform scales came into use.

Lottery Business Died

Miss Mary Knox lived where Albert Patterson lived in 1906. She was an expert in raising flowers. The lot of F. A. Maxwell's house was her flower garden. The older citizens can remember this gentle old lady, as she freely gave to the young folks flowers from her great abundance. Many of the flowers were of rare species.

During the fifties, a lottery office was conducted in the Barry room by Smallwood, agent. His sale of tickets was marvelous. Like all these schemes blanks were the winners. The sellers got the prizes and the poor maintained the office for quite a while. When hoping against a hopeless game ceased. It died for want of patronage.

Pastimes

In 1790 society and the appearance of the town were much alike. Everybody was fighting the wolf from the door. There was no time for style, yet every age has its pastime and the men and women of 1790 were able to find their pleasures. One of the pastimes for the men was rolling long bullets on the streets. Pitching quoits and horseshoes were other amusements. The ladies amused themselves at the spinning wheel or loom, or knitting stockings. Later horse racing and card playing, with brothers became fashionable.

The east end of Lowherds tavern erected by Joseph Danner in 1839 was the place reserved as a ball alley later. One hundred years ago the young men enjoyed the game and amongst them Frederick Black stood first. On this spot the noted fight between Daniel Wetzell and Shockey Shockey took place. It was a naked hand fist prize fight. A large man and a small man, with the large man a bully. Wetzell, who was the smaller, had the endurance and won. A short time later Shockey died from the effects of the fight.

Picnics

Eighty years ago and earlier it was the custom for young men to invite the ladies to picnics with the men, providing a large wagon and the ladies the provisions. They would go to Split Rock usually and spend the day in conversation and dancing. It was a union regardless of creed.

FLIERS SMASH
MANY TARGETS
ON BEACHHEAD

By W. W. HERCHER

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8 (AP)—A powerful force of 750 to 1,000 American heavy bombers swept a wide arc of south Normandy early today, smashing bridges, airdromes and railroad yards and junctions in a vigorous effort to clamp an air seal on the beachhead battlefront.

While Fortresses and Liberators, in the biggest aerial operation of the third day of the invasion, hit hard at installations behind the front, 150 miles behind the front, Marauders began the day of battle with a dawn attack on Caen.

The twin-engined mediums left the city on the main railway between Cherbourg to Paris, burning with at least 20 fires from an attack at 4,500 feet.

These blows followed RAF strikes last night in which a series of rail targets near Paris and German transport 12 miles behind the invasion coast, were riddled with heavy cargoes of bombs. The transport target was a concentration in the forest of Cerisy where the road runs from Bayeux to St. Lo.

Allied planes of all descriptions had flown 22,000 sorties in the last 48 hours and air operations were mounting today as weather improved.

Thunderbolt and Lightning fighter-bombers since 6 p. m. yesterday flew so continuously that they stopped only to refuel and re-arm between flights, setting out on new missions without waiting to repair bullet holes in their wings.

Among the fighter-bomber targets hit were 15 bridges and a chateau used as a German headquarters.

More than 2,000 of the 9,000 sorties flown by the Allies in the 24 hours ending at midnight were made by these fighter-bombers which shot down six enemy aircraft and lost 21 of their own number.

A total of 144 German planes had been knocked down in the last 48 hours, and 20 others destroyed on the ground. The last tabulation showed the Allies had lost 119 aircraft, but Supreme Headquarters was not attempting to keep an up to the minute tabulation and was leaving the announcements of losses to the individual commands.

Nazi night fighters stalked the British formations and scored their biggest kill of the invasion, knocking down 29 of the RAF big bombers.

Targets attacked today by the heavies, which carried out two missions yesterday, were located roughly in the regions of the Chateau-Dun, Lemans, Rennes, Nantes and Tours, all large French towns and strategic communication points. They were accompanied by about 500 Mustangs, Lightnings and Thunderbolts.

Besides the dawn attack on Caen, the Marauders went to Lessay, Pontaubault, Valognes and St. Lo on the Cherbourg peninsula for other assaults, while Havocs pounded Periers and Lahaye du Puits.

The Air Ministry said the well-

hidden Cerisy wood targets was of great tactical importance and had to be attacked at low level because of 7,000 foot clouds.

Other RAF formations attacked the German city of Cologne at the crossings of the Rhine and laid mines. The pattern of attack for RAF medium bombers changed last night to operations against six railroad stations south and west of Caen where the enemy was observed detaching during the daylight.

Eleven victories over enemy aircraft were reported by the night raiders. Eighty-two German planes were destroyed in the air and 20 on the ground during daylight yesterday as Allied planes flying more than 9,000 sorties bombed and strafed the Germans on the Normandy beachheads and penetrated 100 miles inland.

The weather was better for aerial operations today than it had been since the invasion started. Visibility was limited by haze and light mist as the first raiders headed toward the Pas-de-Calais area of the French coast but the skies cleared later.

The Germans were putting up a stiffer fight in the air than they had previously. It was announced that small formations of Nazi planes had attacked Allied troops on the beaches yesterday for the first time, and the Air Ministry said that big British Lancasters and Halifaxes had encountered more enemy fighters than usual last night.

The Paris area rail junctions of Acheres, Versailles, Massy-Palaiseau and Juvisy were hit by the night raiders in operations having the announced purpose of delaying German east-west military traffic.

The German radio said today major Allied air attacks had been made against Lorient and Nantes on the west coast of France in the early morning hours today.

Mrs. Eckenrode before her marriage was Miss Agnes Louise Klunk, daughter of the late Joseph and Catherine Klunk and was born in McSherrystown on June 30, 1894. Mr. Eckenrode was born in Littlestown on March 13, 1864, and was the son of the late Elia and Eliza Eckenrode.

Mr. and Mrs. Eckenrode have three children, Mrs. J. Leaver Toner, Catonsville, Md.; Edward J. Eckenrode, of Hanover, and Mary A. Eckenrode, of Washington. There are five grandchildren.

A reception was held at the home of the couple at which there were guests from Philadelphia, York, New Oxford, Hanover, Littlestown, McSherrystown and Pottsville, Baltimore, Frederick and Washington, D. C.

The couple were the recipients of many beautiful remembrances, floral bouquets, cards and telegrams of congratulations.

History Of Emmitsburg

full (the roads were knee deep in mud).

The hungry and dry soldiers ate all the bread and other eatables offered them. The people stood on the sidewalks with buckets of water to slake their thirst. Many that had passed through six days before did not return. They were either in the hospitals or their graves at Gettysburg. Captain Whitover shed tears when he told of his great loss.

It was a long day to be remembered. When the Confederates entered the town they captured some prisoners which they carried with them. When the Union forces came they captured some Rebels whom they retained. The occasion will not be forgotten. Two men on Sunday morning went to the Lutheran temple to see what was to be seen while the Rebels were in town. When the cavalry stationed at the street pump saw them they raised their guns to shoot. The citizens assured them these men were citizens of the town and not signal corps men, and their lives were saved. Many inconveniences connected with the passage of the Army could be mentioned. It is enough to repeat the words of General Sherman concerning war.

The streets of our town are in fair condition, but do you think they were always thus? Ah, no! It is within the memory of some when the streets were mud holes or very good when the weather was dry. But oh! the mud in the springtime! They were almost impassable. The streets were hollow in the center with the mud washing them deeper after each rain. Thus it continued until 1863, when the Blue Road was made from Westminster to the north line north of the town. The soldiers brought themselves to the road, and the mud was washed away. In a few years it had worn out and the state had to lay the road down again. It was the beginning of our road system and a lesson learned. The town was saved by the Blue Road. For centuries the state continued in this condition until 1873 when a board of commissioners was elected who did more for the town than all the previous ones. They spent the money wisely on the center with large roads and flanked with small roads and travel. This was the beginning of our road system and a lesson learned. The town was saved by the Blue Road.

The town was saved by the Blue Road in this year with the first of the town that of a colored man Isaac Norris. He was taken ill early in the night in a stable and died there. Colored men attended him, not knowing the disease and whether a doctor was called or not. I am not prepared to say. Suffice it to say, he died during the night and was buried in Dr. Patterson's field. Shortly after another case occurred and the man died. Then it was noised about that cholera was in town and the scare commenced. Soon another and still another case, until the death list was 23.

It continued dry the entire summer and very hot until the middle of September when a very early

Remodeling Work Nears Completion

Work on the building purchased by C. A. Harzer, Emmitsburg merchant, from the Charles P. Mort estate last July, has been nearly completed.

The structure, which occupies the northwest corner of the square in Emmitsburg, has been remodeled inside and outside, with a store-room constructed on the first floor from what formerly was two store-rooms, occupied by a drug store and a gift shop, and five apartments constructed in the remainder on the first and second floors.

Thunder storm passed this way, drenching the earth and washing the surface as it had not been for many months. After this rain no new cases occurred. A few of the more prominent who died were Dr. A. Taney and wife, Joseph Moritz, Mrs. Agnew, owner of the Eagle hotel; the Rev. Thomas McCaffery, George Menzer, Samuel Morrison. A great many recovered, some had light attacks, others severe.

Quite a number of persons left the town, remaining away until fall. Whole families spent the cholera season away, having their business and property looked after by persons remaining. Business was almost suspended with the country people going to other towns for their supplies. A depressed state of feeling rested on all, with none knowing who would be the next victim. That year the cholera also visited Cumberland, Hagerstown and Williamsport. One man passing through Emmitsburg contracted the disease and died in Waynesboro. There was a peculiar smell in town all the while the cholera was here, which was more noticeable after there were no more cases and the rain had drenched the town.

Isaac Baugher, a prosperous merchant of Emmitsburg, who resided in 1847 and died in 1849 at the age of 61, during his business career here made an effort to interest the people in a project to pipe the water of Crystal Point to town. The people were satisfied with the convenience their wells afforded, and he dropped his plans.

D. G. Adelsberger made an effort to interest the people at a later date, in the seventies. He commenced a reservoir on his lot of the famous Crystal Mountain spring. Receiving no encouragement from the public he abandoned his enterprise. In 1884 a company was formed, stock subscribed, a reservoir completed, and water piped to the town, mainly through the influence of the president, Isaac S. Annan.

In the childhood of Emmitsburg, the protection against fire was the same as in all small towns, that of carelessness. When the town was alarmed by the cry of "fire," great was the excitement. The bucket brigade, as it was called, turned up men and women. The men passed the full buckets, the women the empty. After spreading blankets on adjoining roofs to save these houses, the men drenched the blankets.

Later on an old suction engine was bought, but it was an out-of-date affair when purchased. About 1850 a more modern apparatus was purchased through J. W. Baugher in Baltimore, which answered very well. The trouble was to supply it with water. With the introduction of mountain water all the former difficulties were overcome. Now the community has an excellent fire company with fine equipment capable of handling all fires that may occur.

NEWSPAPERS IN GREAT DEMAND

Harrisburg, June 8 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers association reported today that post-war newspapers will be able to render an even greater public service than now because of increased circulation and advertising and improved printing methods.

The PNPA executive committee, at a meeting here, reported "an enormous demand for newspapers" which they are not able to supply because of lack of newsprint and delivery restrictions.

The association officers said in a statement that circulations would go up after the war and predicted that present and higher subscription rates will be maintained to help defray the costs of improved newspaper service.

The statement said Pennsylvania publishers expect a shortage of competent help after the war. While they stand ready to re-employ those who entered the armed forces they anticipate about 25 per cent of them will not want their old jobs back.

The publishers advised Washington officials they would be unable to absorb another 10 per cent cut in newsprint if they are to continue their war services along present lines.

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Legislation boosting the nation's national debt limit from $210,000,000,000 to $260,000,000,000, and at the same time reducing the cabinet tax from 30 to 20 per cent, was approved finally by Congress Wednesday and sent to the White House.

The measure clears a legal path for the opening June 12 of the $16,000,000 Fifth War Loan.

Beef cattle on Indian reservations increased from 100,887 head in 1942 to 111,590 in 1943.

Captain First To Land In Invasion

A U. S. Parachute Carrier Base, June 8 (AP)—Capt. Frank Lillyman, the first Allied soldier to touch France in the assault on the west, didn't know when the invasion would come but he had been informed days in advance that whenever it came he would draw the No. 1 spot.

"The cigar-smoking, 29-year-old parachute troop officer from Syracuse, New York, was told of his trail blazing assignment along with Lt. Col. J. L. Crouch of Riverside, California, and their hand-picked crews. Crouch was the pilot of the big Douglas C-47 which was the lead plane of the parachute troop carriers.

They all trained together with secret equipment which permitted pinpoint precision landings so they could direct other parachute troops and gliders to the "DZ"—dropping zone. The parachute troop carriers went in by the light of the moon before the assault on the French coast from the sea.

(A dispatch from the combat transport U. S. S. Barnett said that Capt. Leonard T. Schroeder, 25, of Baltimore, Maryland, may have been the first man to reach the French beach from the sea.)

Father's Day was founded in 1910 by a woman, Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, in Spokane, Washington.

Flashes Of Life

New York (AP)—Joseph Asaro, charged with keeping chickens on the roof of his home in violation of the sanitary code, told the Judge:

"I had 18 chickens at first, but the neighbors began to complain. Now, I've eaten six of them and I'm awfully tired of chicken. If I've got to eat the other 12 for heaven's sake give me enough time."

The Judge gave him 13 days to eat—or otherwise dispose of—the remaining dozen fowls.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Waterbury, Conn. (AP)—John Daly, city editor of the Waterbury Republican, labored long hours overtime getting out extras on the invasion. Then he went home to bed, but couldn't sleep because

EMMITSBURG PRIEST MARKS SILVER JUBILEE

The Rev. Francis L. Rogers, C.M., as he went through the familiar liturgy of the mass at 8 o'clock this morning at St. Euphemia's church, Emmitsburg, was celebrating the 25th anniversary of his ordination as a priest of the Roman Catholic church.

One quarter of a century from the time his bishop pronounced the words, "Tu es sacerdos in aeternum," (Thou art a priest forever), the Rev. Father Rogers marked the day with no particular solemnity—feeling that a quarter century of quiet work of ministering to his congregations was sufficient in itself without undo celebration.

But his parishioners and hundreds of non-Catholic friends in the community of Emmitsburg felt otherwise and last Sunday started a week's celebration of the anniversary that "really was a surprise—I never suspected anything," Father Rogers says.

Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Emmitsburg pastor was invited to the Catholic school—the children, he was told, "are having their annual pageant." He found not only that the children were having a pageant and that it was being held in his honor—but that innumerable friends had brought gifts and were there to congratulate him on the anniversary.

Formal Observance
Next Sunday the celebration will be continued in connection with the feast of Corpus Christi. A solemn high mass will be sung at 10 o'clock in the morning. Rev. Fr. John J. Clonan, C.N., will preach the sermon. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the annual solemn procession will be held followed by Benediction, all to be held out-of-doors on the church grounds.

The fondness the Emmitsburg residents have for the Catholic pastor is more than reciprocated on his part. Emmitsburg, he declares, "is the finest place on the face of the earth. The people lead the finest lives of any group of persons. Protestants and Catholics are more cooperative than anywhere else."

Old Parish.
The Catholic church, built 103 years ago is of Italian renaissance architecture. The priest quoted an architect as saying, "I've seen churches everywhere but the finest is the one at Emmitsburg."

"The church, beautiful on the outside, is just as perfect inside," says Father Rogers, and he gives the congregation all credit for keeping it that way.

The Emmitsburg pastor has been rector at the church there for the last five years and was stationed at Emmitsburg for nine years as assistant pastor starting 20 years ago.

After his ordination he served first at Germantown, then at Utica, New York. His third station was at Emmitsburg from 1923 to 1932. From there he was stationed at a seminary in Princeton, New Jersey until 1936, when he was moved to Baltimore, from 1936 to 1939, before being "sent back home" to Emmitsburg, as he expresses it.

The parish at Emmitsburg is 151

years old and has had a school connected with it for nearly that length of time.

Close Cooperation

As proof of the cooperativeness of everyone in Emmitsburg, he cites the case of the Rev. Philip Bower, Emmitsburg Lutheran pastor, and the manager of the Emmitsburg theater. On Tuesday, when the invasion began, Father Rogers called the Rev. Mr. Bowers. It was decided to ask the theater manager to close the theater there for the evening because of services to be held in the churches Tuesday evening to pray for the men in the invasion forces. Since the theater manager was a parishioner of the Rev. Mr. Bowers, he asked the manager what he thought of the idea.

The result was that the show was closed in tribute to the men in the armed forces and the citizens of the town attended church services.

As another example of cooperativeness in the parish—there are never any special collections, with the regular collections at Sunday masses sufficing and no collections taken at Sunday evening services or otherwise.

Builds New Wall

"The parishioners are truly wonderful," Father Rogers says. "I simply have to tell them what is needed and they provide. If it is time for the coal collection for the church, school and rectory, I simply announce that next Sunday the collection will be held and they supply all that is needed."

Another example of cooperation, "and the wonderful spirit of Emmitsburg," Father Rogers adds, is the way in which the limestone wall is being built around the front of the church and back to the school. The five hundred feet of wall will cost about $2,500. To raise money Father Rogers gives certificates for each $5 contribution to buy one foot of wall.

"Why even our non-Catholic friends are helping to build the wall by buying certificates," Father Rogers adds, "They seem to really enjoy helping us."

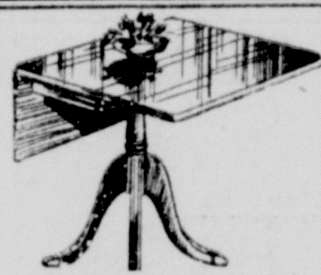

The Emmitsburg priest when interviewed by a reporter for The Gettysburg Times spent little time in telling about himself, or his priestly labors. In a few brief words he told his story—but he talked long of his friends, of the sisters who do "a marvelous job" at the school, of the kindness of everyone in Emmitsburg, of the "splendid" town commissioners, of the "truly Christian" nature of the people of the community, of the "true Catholicism of the parishioners and the way in which they love their church and their duties."

Story Of Founding Of Historic Emmitsburg, Maryland

By JAMES A. HELMAN

Stone Cutters

James Kelly lived south of the college. He did all of the marble work here until Frederick Meals came here from Gettysburg in 1860. Later U. A. Lough, who owned the M. F. Shuff property, W. H. Hoke, Charles Hoke and A. Annan were stonecutters here, with Charles Hoke later forming the firm of Hoke and Rider. We understand why so many early graves were unmarked. The stone cutters were few in the early days and there were no opportunities to obtain stones. As to price, the cost must have been great, because even men of means had very small tombstones.

At one time a large post stood on the curb in the pavement of Lewis Motter, a beam poised in a slot on either side had a square platform to which was attached chains from the four corners, then centering on the end of the beam. It was a balance scale; 56 pound weights and smaller stood by for use in weighing iron and heavy articles. This was the scale before platform scales came into use.

Lottery Business Died

Miss Mary Knox lived where Albert Patterson lived in 1906. She was an expert in raising flowers. The lot of P. A. Maxell's house was her flower garden. The older citizens can remember this gentle old lady, as she freely gave to the young folks flowers from her great abundance. Many of the flowers were of rare species.

During the fifties, a lottery office was conducted in the Barry room by Smallwood, agent. His sale of tickets was marvelous. Like all these schemers blanks were the winners. The sellers got the prizes and the poor maintained the office for quite a while. When hoping against a hopeless game ceased, it died for want of patronage.

Pastimes

In 1790 society and the appearance of the town were much alike. Every body was fighting the wolf from the door. There was no time for style, yet every age has its pastime and the men and women of 1790 were able to find their pleasures. One of the pastimes for the men was rolling long bullets on the streets. Pitching quoits and horseshoes were other amusements. The ladies amused themselves at the spinning wheel or loom, or knitting stockings. Later horse racing and card playing, twin brothers became fashionable.

The east end of Lowherds tavern erected by Joseph Danner in 1833 was the place reserved as a ball alley later. One hundred years ago the young men enjoyed the game and amongst them Frederick Black stood first. On this spot the noted fight between Daniel Wetzel and Shockey Shockey took place. It was a naked hand fist prize fight. A large man and a small man, with the large man a bully. Wetzel, who was the smaller, had the endurance and won. A short time later Shockey died from the effects of the fight.

Picnics

Eighty years ago and earlier it was the custom for young men to invite the ladies to picnics with the men providing a large wagon and the ladies the provisions. They would go to Split Rock usually and spend the day in conversation and dancing. It was a union regardless of creed

Lutheran Steeple

The rod on the Lutheran steeple was blown down around 1850. A sailor came along and replaced it. After finishing the work he straddled the ball atop the steeple and sang a sailor's song. A crowd of citizens watched him from the beginning to the finish. This steeple had a fish about four feet in length placed on it when built in 1814, at the remodeling of the church and painting of the steeple. Later the committee decided to remove the fish, and thus deprived the town of its only weather vane.

View of Church and Concrete Walk
The former study of the Lutheran parsonage was removed and an avenue opened direct to the church and a concrete pavement made from the street to the church door. No improvement ever made in the town has met with such universal favor. The dark alley through which the congregations, new dead, traversed when living, and were carried when dead, has resumed its former position.

July, 1863

The Lutheran church was the office of the provost marshal, Captain Schofield, when the Federal army passed through on the way to Gettysburg, and also on its return. General Howard had his headquarters at the priest's house while General Steiner occupied the house owned by J. Stewart Annan in 1906. Whilst the army was passing the soldiers purchased all the tobacco in the town and all the whiskey they could get.

One dealer sold hundreds of canteens at one dollar each, until the provost stopped it and put a guard there. Sunday morning after the fight at Gettysburg, Jenkins' Confederate cavalry entered the town by daybreak on their retreat. When asked how the battle terminated they claimed the victory. Soon they were off toward Mechanicstown, crossing the mountain through that gap to Hagerstown.

Ate All The Bread

About 10 o'clock Kilpatrick's cavalry came dashing into the town at full charge, expecting to find the

Johnnies there, but they had fled. The cavalry reported the full retreat of Lee's army. Kilpatrick was in pursuit of the Rebs that passed through here. Oh, the commotion of that day. The church bells rang, but who heeded them, it was war times. Soon the army was on the move, the roads were full, the field

COUPLE MARKS 50TH WEDDING DAY ON SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Eckenrode, 7 Center Square, Emmitsburg, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on Sunday, June 4.

The occasion was marked with a special mass celebrated in St. Joseph's Catholic church by the Rev. Salvatore Burgo, C.M. A message of congratulations from His Excellency, Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, was read. The choir under the direction of Mrs. Euphemia Rotering rendered the music. Prof. William Sturbinsky was the violinist and Mrs. T. Richards and Mrs. Joseph Williv were the soloists. Masters William Sturbinsky and Donald Rogers were the altar boys. The Rev. Francis Rogers, pastor of St. Joseph's church gave the nuptial blessing.

Mr. and Mrs. Eckenrode were married on June 5, 1894, at a nuptial mass in Holy Trinity church, McSherrystown, by the late Rev. J. Leo Brand, S.J. They were attended by the late John I. Lawrence of McSherrystown and the late Miss Anne C. Eckenrode of Littlestown, sister of Mr. Eckenrode.

Reception Held
Mrs. Eckenrode before her marriage was Miss Agnes Louise Klunk, daughter of the late Joseph and Catherine Klunk and was born in McSherrystown on June 30, 1894. Mr. Eckenrode was born in Littlestown on March 13, 1864, and was the son of the late Eli and Eliza Eckenrode.

Mr. and Mrs. Eckenrode have three children, Mrs. J. Lester Topper, Catonsville, Md.; Edward J. Eckenrode, of Hanover, and Mary A. Eckenrode, of Washington. There are five grandchildren.

A reception was held at the home of the couple at which there were guests from Philadelphia, York, New Oxford, Hanover, Littlestown, McSherrystown and Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Frederick and Washington, D. C.

The couple were the recipients of many beautiful remembrances, floral bouquets, cards and telegrams of congratulations.

full the roads were knee deep in mud). The hungry and dry soldiers ate all the bread and other eatables offered them. The people stood on the sidewalks with buckets of water to slake their thirst. Many that had passed through six days before did not return. They were either in the hospitals or their graves at Gettysburg. Captain Wilcox shed tears when he told of his great loss.

It was a long day to be remembered. When the Confederates entered the town they captured some prisoners which they carried with them. When the Union forces came they captured some Rebels whom they retained. The occasion will not be forgotten. Two men on Sunday morning went to the Lutheran steeple to see what was to be seen whilst the Reb cavalry were in town. When the cavalry stationed at the street pump saw them they raised their guns to shoot. The citizens assured them these men were citizens of the town and not signal corps men, and their lives were saved. Many inconveniences connected with the passage of the Army could be mentioned. It is enough to repeat the words of General Sherman concerning war.

The streets of our town are in fine condition, but do you think they were always thus? Ah, no! It is within the memory of some when the streets were mud holes, only good when the weather was dry. But, oh! the mud in the springtime. They were almost impassable. The streets were hollow in the center with the rains washing them deeper after each rain. Thus it continued until 1853, when the plank road was made from Westminster to the state line north. How blessed the citizens thought themselves then, how smooth the road, how loud the noise of a horse and wagon! In a few years it had worn out, and the state lost sixty-five thousand dollars by an experiment, and we had a ruined street deeper in the middle than before. For eighteen years the street continued in this condition, until 1873 when a board of commissioners was elected who did more real good for the town than any before. They spent the money filling up the center with large rocks and finished with small stones and gravel. That was the beginning of our good streets. All praise to that board.

The town was visited by cholera in this year with the first case being that of a colored man, Isaac Norris. He was taken ill early in the night in a stable and died there. Colored men attended him, not knowing the disease and whether a doctor was called or not, I am not prepared to say. Suffice it to say, he died during the night and was buried in Dr. Patterson's field. Shortly after another case occurred and the man died. Then it was noised about that cholera was in town and the scare commenced. Soon another and still another case, until the death list was 23.

It continued dry the entire summer and very hot until the middle of September when a very severe

Remodeling Work Nears Completion

Work on the building purchased by C. A. Harner, Emmitsburg merchant, from the Charles P. Mort estate last July, has been nearly completed.

The structure, which occupies the northwest corner of the square in Emmitsburg, has been remodeled inside and outside, with a store-room constructed on the first floor from what formerly was two store-rooms, occupied by a drug store and a gift shop, and five apartments constructed in the remainder on the first and second floors.

thunder storm passed this way, drenching the earth and washing the surface as it had not been for many months. After this rain no new cases occurred. A few of the more prominent who died were Dr. A. Taney and wife, Joseph Moritz, Mrs. Agnew, owner of the Eagle hotel; the Rev. Thomas McCaffery, George Mentzer, Samuel Morrison. A great many recovered, some had light attacks, others severe.

Quite a number of persons left the town, remaining away until fall. Whole families spent the cholera season away, having their business and property looked after by persons remaining. Business was almost suspended with the country people going to other towns for their supplies. A depressed state of feeling rested on all, with none knowing who would be the next victim. That year the cholera also visited Cumberland, Hagerstown and Williamsport. One man passing through Emmitsburg contracted the disease and died in Waynesboro. There was a peculiar smell in town all the while the cholera was here, which was more noticeable after there were no more cases and the rain had drenched the town.

Isaac Baugher, a prosperous merchant of Emmitsburg, who retired in 1847 and died in 1848 at the age of 61, during his business career here made an effort to interest the people in a project to pipe the water of Crystal Fount to town. The people were satisfied with the convenience their wells afforded, and he dropped his plans.

D. G. Adelsberger made an effort to interest the people at a later date, in the seventies. He commenced a reservoir on his lot of the famous Crystal Mountain spring. Receiving no encouragement from the public he abandoned his enterprise. In 1884 a company was formed, stock subscribed, a reservoir completed, and water piped to the town, mainly through the influence of the president, Isaac S. Annan.

In the childhood of Emmitsburg, the protection against fire was that of carelessness. When the town was alarmed by the cry of "fire," great was the excitement. The bucket brigade, as it was called, turned out men and women. The men passed the full buckets, the women the empty. After spreading blankets on adjoining roofs to save these houses, the men drenched the blankets.

Later on an old suction engine was bought, but it was an out-of-date affair when purchased. About 1850 a more modern apparatus was purchased through J. W. Baugher in Baltimore, which answered very well. The trouble was to supply it with water. With the introduction of mountain water all the former difficulties were overcome. Now the community has an excellent fire company with fine equipment capable of handling all fires that may occur.

NEWSPAPERS IN GREAT DEMAND

Harrisburg, June 8 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers association reported today that post-war newspapers will be able to render an even greater public service than now because of increased circulation and advertising and improved printing methods.

The PNPA executive committee, at a meeting here, reported "an enormous demand for newspapers" which they are not able to supply because of lack of newsprint and delivery restrictions.

The association officers said in a statement that circulations would go up after the war and predicted that present and higher subscription rates will be maintained to help defray the costs of improved newspaper service.

The statement said Pennsylvania publishers expect a shortage of competent help after the war. While they stand ready to re-employ those who entered the armed forces they anticipate about 25 per cent of them will not want their old jobs back.

The publishers advised Washington officials they would be unable to absorb another 10 per cent cut in newsprint if they are to continue their war services along present lines.

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Legislation boosting the nation's national debt limit from $210,000,000,000 to $260,000,000,000, and at the same time reducing the cabaret tax from 30 to 20 per cent, was approved finally by Congress Wednesday and sent to the White House.

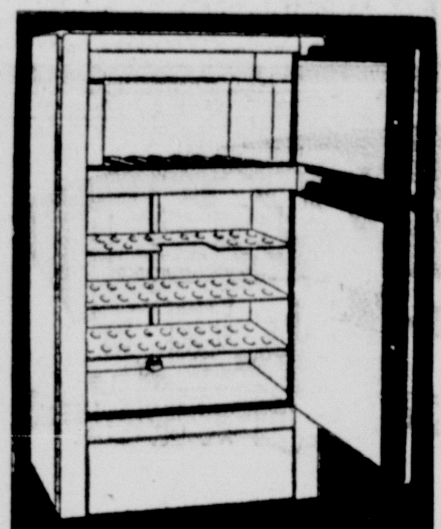

The measure clears a legal path for the opening June 12 of the $16,000,000 Fifth War Loan.

Beef cattle on Indian reservations increased from 100,867 head in 1942 to 111,590 in 1943.

Captain First To Land In Invasion

A U. S. Parachute Carrier Base, June 8 (AP)—Capt. Frank Lillyman, the first Allied soldier to touch France in the assault from the west, didn't know when the invasion would come but he had been informed days in advance that whenever it came he would draw the No. 1 spot.

The cigar-smoking 29-year-old parachute troop officer from Syracuse, New York, was told of his trail blazing assignment along with Lt. Col. J. L. Crouch of Riverside, California, and their hand-picked crews. Crouch was the pilot of the big Douglas C-47 which was the lead plane of the parachute troop carriers.

They all trained together with secret equipment which permitted pinpoint precision landings so they could direct other parachute troops and gliders to the "DZ"—dropping zone. The parachute troop carriers went in by the light of the moon before the assault on the French coast from the sea.

(A dispatch from the combat transport U. S. S. Barnett said that Capt. Leonard T. Schroeder, 25, of Baltimore, Maryland, may have been the first man to reach the French beach from the sea.)

Father's Day was founded in 1910 by a woman, Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, in Spokane, Washington.

The judge gave him 13 days to eat—or otherwise dispose of—the remaining dozen fowls.

GRATITUDE

D-Day was the most critical day of our generation. We are deeply indebted to the press, radio and newsreels which, since the beginning of the invasion, have kept us fully informed as to the movements of the Allied Forces.

This, the greatest achievement in the gathering and dissemination of information ever recorded, makes us realize what our men faced when they landed, and more fully understand the depth of our obligation as individuals and organizations in backing up our Armed Forces.

Our prayers are with all who are participating in the liberation of Europe, and our sympathy goes out to the families of those who have made the supreme sacrifice.

Fears Shortage Of Coal Next Winter

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Senator Mead (D-NY) voiced fears today of an unprecedented coal shortage next winter unless government and industry stimulates a summer buying spree.

"Coal supplies are being depleted rapidly with the stockpiles dwindling almost to the vanishing point," Mead told a reporter.

Asserting the northern states will be facing "a severe plight" unless drastic measures are inaugurated, he suggested the government and the coal industry as a whole unite in sponsoring a campaign designed to accelerate storing by household and business users.

Bulletins

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Portugal became Wednesday first of the European neutrals to give full compliance to Allied requests for stoppage of vital war aid to the Nazis. It imposed a complete ban on export of production of wolfram. The prohibition, it was disclosed, was undertaken Monday, before Allied landings in France.

Rome, June 8 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, in a congratulatory message to the American, French and British divisions of the Fifth Army, said Wednesday, through capture of Rome "you have again proved you form a great Allied fighting team ready to launch new assaults on new objectives that lie between us and complete victory."

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8 (AP)—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery has a couple of new gifts from Americans with whom, he said, "I always get along well." They are a battle dress "straight from New York and the finest suit I ever had" and a watch—a good one, it keeps time.

People! Americans, All!

Have we forgotten the last war with the big wages, the stock market going higher and higher the silk shirts, eighteen and twenty dollar shoes, the spending of money like it would last forever and after that war men by the thousands waiting in line for soup and bread? Men losing their all in the stock market, going crazy, killing themselves, sorrow here and almost everywhere. Did we learn the lesson? I am afraid not, for history is repeating itself, not only in war, but in high wages. People making so much money, they are again buying $50.00 neckties, $18.00 shoes and spending money recklessly, for drink and pleasure, like it would never end.

This is written with the hope that we people Americans all, would sit down, alone and think for ten minutes, of our lives here and our boys' lives over there and what we are doing, or can do, to safeguard their future and our future.

As I see it, we must sacrifice, do without, deny ourselves of many things called pleasure and put our big wages and profits into War Bonds. By so doing, we are not only helping ourselves and our boys, but our country as well.

God of our fathers, lest we forget to learn the lessons of those days and avoid the troubles that will come again. Protect us, we pray.

MARLON N. HAINES.

Better known as Haines The Shoe Wizard.

P.S. Many people will say "What is he doing?"

I have bought $123,600 worth of Bonds, none of which will be sold until after the war is over and our boys come marching home. I have given over $4,000 to the Red Cross and am saving gasoline by staying home, saving fuel oil by burning wood and coal. Have not raised rents on any property I own. Have not advanced the shoes beyond the regular percentage of profit and spending as little money as possible for personal self. Yet I have not done enough or never can for those boys who are giving their all. I am sure, when the boys come home, I can look them in the eyes and have no regrets.

Yes, my two boys are privates in the Army and I want the war over for my boys, and your boys, just as soon as possible and I think the buying of Bonds to put guns and ammunition into their hands will bring peace much sooner.

Reds Are Preparing For Big Offensive

Moscow, June 8 (AP)—Russia is prepared to throw the great weight of the Red Army into the growing offensive against Germany, Red Star, the Soviet Army newspaper, said Wednesday.

"A strong, mounting attack of all the armies of the United Nations will be fully developed," Red Star said.

Muscovites got up early this morning to read the freshest invasion bulletins, despite one of the wildest nights of celebration during the war.

batteries between Boulogne and Calais sent over as many as four and six shells at a time. The explosions shook coastal towns on this side.

London, June 8 (AP)—Berlin radio declared Wednesday "a second daylight invasion attempt at Pas-de-Calais was opposed Wednesday morning by German artillery." The heavily-bombed Pas de Calais area lies across the narrowest stretch of the channel from Dover on the English coast and is north-east of the Cherbourg peninsula.

New York, June 8 (AP)—The British Information Service said Wednesday that the British 6th airborne division has captured and is holding bridges north of Caen, France.

GENERAL "IKE" DIRECTS AID TO DRIFTING BOAT

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8 (AP)—General Eisenhower and Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, commander of Allied Naval Forces, interrupted a four-and-a-half-hour cruise off the French invasion beaches yesterday long enough to direct aid to a handful of unknown, drifting soldiers, it was learned today.

On the way to their ship-board conference with operational commanders, Eisenhower and Ramsay were informed that landing barges had been sighted lurching helplessly at one side of the convoy.

The men aboard signaled that they needed help and the answering signal from the bridge of the fast British naval vessel carrying Eisenhower and Ramsay said that their plight would be relayed to the next home-going ship. A returning landing craft was passed only a mile or so nearer France and was given the location of the drifting barge.

In Midst Of Armada

Eisenhower's and Ramsay's conference with high officers, including Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the invasion ground forces, and Rear Admiral Alan Goodrich Kirk, commander of the U. S. Naval Task Forces in the invasion operation, was held in the midst of an armada of thousands of ships.

The supreme commander left an English coastal town to attend the meeting only 24 hours after the early landing operations. At one point the conference was carried on within five miles of the enemy because Eisenhower felt he could thereby get better communications. At one stage of the cruise there was hardly room on the deck for the clustered generals and admirals to pass each other.

As Montgomery, in corduroy trousers and a fleece-lined jacket, bobbed away from the side of the ship in his launch at the end of the session a lieutenant had to break up the sailors crowding the rail. Eisenhower grinned, stuck up his thumb and called after Montgomery: "Good luck to you."

The supreme commander showed satisfaction at the results of his conference upon his return.

SENATOR ASKS FULL PROBE OF INVASION LEAK

(By The Associated Press)
Washington, June 8 (AP)—Senator Chandler (D-Ky) today proposed a Senatorial investigation into the demotion of Major General Henry J. P. Miller to his permanent rank of lieutenant colonel and his subsequent dismissal from the European theatre to the United States for talking in advance about D-Day.

"This is one of the most serious things an officer could do," said Chandler. "Thousands of lives depended on keeping that date secret. I think the military committee should know all of the circumstances."

The Army quoted Miller as having said, at a cocktail party, "on my honor, the invasion will take place before June 15."

Military Merger

The House committee on postwar military policy discloses that the high command has directed that two Army officers and two Navy officers sit as a committee to study proposals for merging the military departments. Reason for the committee: Widely divergent views among the military on the subject of consolidation. Congressional demands for the merger also are believed to have been partially responsible for the action.

Price Control

Some Senators predicted today that President Roosevelt might veto the bill to extend the price control administration, because of amendments written into the bill which they feel would reduce controls over inflation. Controversial amendments include one to relieve merchants of damage liability in consumer suits if they prove that charged ceiling price violations were unintentional, and an amendment

Philadelphia May Return To Airways

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP)—A new move to restore Philadelphia to the nation's commercial air map was under way today with $200,000 earmarked by President Roosevelt for completion of Northeast airport.

Cab halted commercial operations at Philadelphia Municipal airport last December 23 because of "intensified military activities in the vicinity."

Meanwhile United Airlines resumed service at Allentown, 50 miles away and Philadelphia's nearest transcontinental air link, following modification of a court order prohibiting planes from low flying over a farm adjoining the Allentown-Bethlehem airport.

No automobile connection to Philadelphia is provided, however.

APPRECIATION

Memphis, June 8 (AP)—A. H. McKee has driven his taxicab 150,000 miles and kept it "looking like new." Today the company showed its appreciation—they gave him the cab.

which would raise some cotton textile prices.

YANKEES TAKE HUGE AIRFIELD ON BIAK ISLAND

By ROBERT EUNSON

Advanced Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, June 8 (AP)—Mokmer airfield, wrested from the Japanese on Biak Island, was in American hands today, a prized base from which to launch air assaults against the Philippines.

The coastal coral strip, Allied goal since the May 27 invasion of the island off northern Dutch New Guinea, fell into American hands yesterday at 11 a. m.

Another American column striking along the coast had been halted five miles east of Mokmer. Southwest Pacific headquarters announced that this Japanese block was widely encircled by the inland column which struck from the rear to take Mokmer.

"Surprise was thereby attained and the enemy's forces were routed with light losses to ourselves," the communiqué declared.

"Our Naval and Air Forces operated in full and close cooperation."

From Mokmer and other air fields which readily may be constructed on the flat, low-lying southeastern two-thirds of Biak island, Fifth Air Force fighters could control all western Dutch New Guinea and strike at Palau, 395 miles away. Bombers could range far into the Dutch East Indies and to the Philippines, only 880 miles distant.

On Bougainville island in the Solomons, the Empress Augusta bay beachhead was expanded for the third time within a week.

70 Aircraft Lost In Invasion Thrust

London, June 8 (AP)—Allied air forces have lost 70 aircraft in this theater since the invasion started, Wednesday's announcements showed. Various announcements gave this breakdown:

Seventeen Allied fighters, 12 American C-47 troop carriers, 12 American CG-42 gliders, 13 British heavy bombers, six American Thunderbolt fighters, four American Havocs, two American Lightning fighters, two American medium bombers, one RAF Beaufighter, one American heavy bomber.

Murder at CANDLEWOOD

by Gene Barker, Lumbert

Chapter 6
For all the rest of her life Spring would have the sound of rain, would hear in its voice the terrified tumult of the waters, and see again the twisted, ghastly figure folded over the stone bridge.

She turned away, shuddering. Dirk put his arm around her and faced her toward the house. "Just a minute," he said gently.

He stooped over the quiet thing that had been a man, took off his raincoat and softened the grim, angular presence of death into a shapeless mound beneath his coat. They went back to the house, Dirk going directly to the telephone.

Spring stood watching, too numb to speak, until Dirk put down the receiver and drew her into the parlor, close to the fire.

He poured half a jigger of brandy.

"Drink this," he said. The color slowly flowed back into her lips and cheeks.

"Where will I find Gil?" he said. "We'll have to tell them. The police will be here soon."

"The police?" she whispered. "Why?"

"Because," he said grimly, "something is very wrong. Someone killed Elvan."

There was a hoarse little sound behind them and a thud. The rain seemed to pause on the tin roof outside, then began again. Dirk moved swiftly to the hall door, and came back with Jo in his arms. He laid her on the couch.

Dirk's face was gray. "That was pretty crude," he said. "I was wondering how we'd tell her."

Something in the emphasis struck Spring oddly. "Why do you say that?" she asked.

"I think she loved him."

Spring stared. "Oh, no! But why?"

The front door slammed and Justin, who was a frequent visitor in Candlewood from his neighboring estate, came in with almost too much life and vigor.

He saw Jo struggling to sit up on the couch, heard her hysterical whimper: "They killed him! They killed him!"

He swung around to Dirk and Spring. "What the hell's this all about?"

His face registered shock, but his eyes flickered peculiarly. Spring felt vague terror stir in the back of her mind.

Those next two hours were a nightmare. Great Aunt Adelaide rolled her wheelchair into the parlor like an approaching thundercloud, recoiled at the grim news.

"Elvan!" she quavered. "Not little Elvan!"

Aunt Drusilla folded up in the lounge chair beside the fire and began to cry softly. She was still crying when Gil came in, summoned from the candle shop.

The shop was some thirty rods from the house, set against a hilllock in a grove of red maples across the southeast terrace of Candlewood. Gil must have run all the way, for he was breathing heavily as he came in. He had someone with him, a slim, dark girl with black, vigilant eyes, and someone remembered to introduce her to Spring and Dirk.

"Moria—" It was Justin speaking. "Moria Hastings. She helps Gil in the shop."

Spring liked her at once. She was clean-cut, intelligent, capable. "I think," Moria said, going over to Jo on the couch, "it would be better for you out of this excitement."

GREAT FIRES BURNING BACK OF NAZI LINES

By PETER GLADWIN
(Representing the Combined Allied Press)
Distributed by The Associated Press
An Airbase in England, June 8—We flew over a naval battle in the channel before dawn Wednesday and crossed the French coast to find the country behind the Normandy beachheads blazing with great fires. The mission of our Mitchell medium bombers was the same as Tuesday's—to cut communications behind the beachhead and impede the reinforcement of German forces attempting to drive back the Allied thrust for Caen.

Allied Mastery
As we scudded across the channel below the low cloud ceiling, underneath we could see a group of destroyers astern, and farther over, a line of enemy E-boats. We watched the destroyers open fire but we could not see its effects. In a few moments the E-boats were hidden in their own shroud of smoke-screen.

We flew the entire trip from base to target and back at an altitude of 3,000 feet, made necessary by the low ceiling of extremely thick clouds, being conditions were bad on top, it was a significant indication of the extent of Allied mastery of the skies of northern France that the Mitchell's completed this mission successfully and without loss.

Bomber At Work
As we crossed the French coast searchlights picked us up. I sat waiting for the attack to arrive, but Pilot Phil Creeke, of Sydney, Australia, weaved up into the clouds and shook off the lights.

When we came out of the clouds again we could see away over the Normandy battlefield. The night was torn with gun flashes and the dull glow of fires against the dark horizon. Near, great blazing fires, marked the path of the bombers which had been over earlier in the night.

Caen was burning in the distance. As we approached our target we could see heavy bombers at work on Lisieux. We could not see the bombers themselves; but there was plenty of evidence of their presence.

"One Enormous Bonfire"
I saw one terrific explosion as we turned to our own target. It was a railway bridge across a river. On our port side a little town was burning like one enormous bonfire.

We circled our target while another Mitchell dropped his bombs. Then we went in and let go a stick of 1,000-pound bombs.

Weaving our way back to the coast we encountered some light flak, but we were through before the Germans had the range. We crossed the coast in a heavy rain which drove the ceiling lower. Through the muck over the channel I could see the Aldis signalling lamps blinking.

APPEAL DENIED
Norristown, Pa., June 8 (AP)—The appeal of Mrs. Helen M. Wucherer against her second degree murder conviction in the shooting of her husband, August Wucherer, was denied Wednesday by Judge George C. Conson. She was ordered to appear Friday for sentencing.

15,000 PLANE WORKERS IDLE IN OHIO PLANT
(By The Associated Press)
Production of airplane engines at the Wright Aeronautical Corporation plant in Lockland, Ohio, continued below normal today and some 15,000 of the company's employees, idle as a result of a labor dispute, were confronted with loss of their jobs if they did not return to work by tomorrow.

William D. Kennedy, the company's plant manager, said last night that the workers who have hampered production for three days would be discharged if they failed to resume production by that time.

Kennedy's ultimatum came shortly after a War Labor Board order for the strikers to resume their tasks and after representatives of the Army and the employees' CIO union had made similar requests. The board said no group "can be permitted to place their grievance above the immediate needs of the armed forces." The dispute arose when seven negro workers were transferred to a department formerly manned by white employees.

In Other Areas
Meanwhile, work stoppages in scattered sections of the country are resulting from labor controversies, including an additional estimated 5,000 men and women idle in nine separate industries. Two other students with the population.

SHARP DROP IN "ABSENTEEISM"

Pittsburgh, June 8 (AP)—"Incredible minimums" of absenteeism today continued to spur production in war plants throughout western Pennsylvania following the invasion of France.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., meanwhile, reported that its 20,000 employees at the East Pittsburgh and Trafford works re-affirmed their no-strike pledge as Navy commander W. W. Slocum reminded the workers that "this is only the beginning, and the outcome of this war depends upon us producing more than we ever produced before."

Six hundred strikers at the McKees Rocks plant of Pressed Steel Car Co. returned to work yesterday after hearing appeals of a Navy officer and Union official to back up the boys who are "dying on the beachheads of France."

Sharp drops in absenteeism were reported at the Jessop Steel Co. at Washington, Pa., the Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corp., Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., Jones and McLaughlin Steel Corp., Blaw-Knox Co., Pittsburgh, and the Aluminum Company of America, at New Kensington, some reaching the lowest in many months.

Washington, June 8 (AP)—A Senate-House Conference committee compromised today on a six-months' extension—until next December—of the time in which court martial proceedings might be instituted against Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short as a result of the Pearl Harbor catastrophe.

The present extension expires at midnight tonight.

16-Year Old Boy Edits Newspaper

Athens, Ga., June 8 (AP)—John Edwin Pope was named telegraph editor of the Banner Herald on Monday.

It is his job to edit thousands of words received by the afternoon daily from the Associated Press, write headlines and draw up a "dummy" for the front page.

On the second day of his job, John Edwin was confronted by one of the biggest stories in modern history—the Allied invasion of Europe. He went about his business like a veteran, other editors said.

John Edwin is 16 years old.

Fears Shortage Of Coal Next Winter

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Senator Mead (D-NY) voiced fears today of an unprecedented coal shortage next winter unless government and industry stimulates a summer buying spree.

"Coal supplies are being depleted rapidly with the stockpiles dwindling almost to the vanishing point," Mead told a reporter.

Asserting the northern states will be facing "a severe plight" unless drastic measures are inaugurated, he suggested the government and the coal industry as a whole unite in sponsoring a campaign designed to accelerate storing by household and business users.

Work Stoppage At York Safe And Lock

York, Pa., June 8 (AP)—Following an investigation of a work stoppage Monday night and Tuesday morning at the special ordnance plant of York Safe and Lock Company, 48 suspended employees have been notified to return to work and the suspensions of four other workers have been continued for an indefinite period. Commander H. F. Clark, Navy officer in charge, said today.

Commander Clark said he still believed the stoppage had been unauthorized. The workers are charged with violation of the War Labor Disputes Act. The plant is operated by the government, having been taken over under war powers.

Sea water can be made drinkable by adding silver oxide, and tartaric or citric acid.

Bulletins

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Portugal became Wednesday first of the European neutrals to give full compliance to Allied requests for stoppage of vital war aid to the Nazis. It imposed a complete ban on export of production of wolfram. The prohibition, it was disclosed, was undertaken Monday, before Allied landings in France.

Rome, June 8 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, in a congratulatory message to the American, French and British divisions of the Fifth Army, said Wednesday, through capture of Rome "you have again proved you form a great Allied fighting team ready to launch new assaults on new objectives that lie between us and complete victory."

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 8 (AP)—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery has a couple of new gifts from Americans with whom, he said, "I always get along well." They are a battle dress "straight from New York and the finest suit I ever had" and a watch—"a good one, it keeps time."

Folkstone, England, June 8 (AP)—German long-range guns on the French coast some 150 miles above the Allied invasion beachheads fired across the Dover strait for two hours Wednesday. For a half hour

People! Americans, All!

Have we forgotten the last war, with the big wages, the stock market going higher and higher, the silk shirts, eighteen and twenty-dollar shoes, the spending of money like it would last forever and after that war, men by the thousands, waiting in line for soup and bread? Men, losing their all in the stock market, going crazy, killing themselves, sorrow here and almost everywhere. Did we learn the lesson? I am afraid not, for history is repeating itself, not only in war, but in high wages. People making so much money, they are again buying $50.00 neckties, $18.00 shoes and spending money recklessly, for drink and pleasure, like it would never end.

This is written with the hope that we people, Americans all, would sit down, alone, and think, for ten minutes, of our lives here and our boys' lives over there and what we are doing, or can do, to safeguard their future and our future.

As I see it, we must sacrifice, do without, deny ourselves of many things called pleasure and put our big wages and profits into War Bonds. By so doing, we are not only helping ourselves and our boys, but our country as well.

God of our fathers, lest we forget to learn the lessons of those days and avoid the troubles that will come again. Protect us, we pray.

MAHLON N. HAINES,
Better known as Haines The Shoe Wizard.

P. S. Many people will say "What is he doing?"

I have bought $123,600 worth of Bonds, none of which will be sold until after the war is over and our boys come marching home. I have given over $4,900 to the Red Cross and am saving gasoline by staying home, saving fuel oil by burning wood and coal. Have not raised rents on any property I own. Have not advanced the shoes beyond the regular percentage of profit and spending as little money as possible for personal self. Yet I have not done enough or never can for those boys who are giving their all. I am sure, when the boys come home, I can look them in the eyes and have no regrets.

Yes, my two boys are privates in the Army and I want the war over for my boys, and your boys, just as soon as possible and I think the buying of Bonds to put guns and ammunition into their hands will bring peace much sooner.

Reds Are Preparing For Big Offensive

Moscow, June 8 (AP)—Russia is prepared to throw the great weight of the Red Army into the growing offensive against Germany, Red Star, the Soviet Army newspaper, said Wednesday.

"A strong, mounting attack of all the armies of the United Nations will be fully developed," Red Star said.

Muscovites got up early this morning to read the freshest invasion bulletins, despite one of the wildest nights of celebration during the war.

batteries between Boulogne and Calais sent over as many as four and six shells at a time. The explosions shook coastal towns on this side.

London, June 8 (AP)—Berlin radio declared Wednesday "a second daylight invasion attempt at Pas-de-Calais was opposed Wednesday morning by German artillery." The heavily-bombed Pas de Calais area lies across the narrowest stretch of the channel from Dover on the English coast, and is north-east of the Cherbourg peninsula.

New York, June 8 (AP)—The British Information Service said Wednesday that the British 6th airborne division has captured and is holding bridges north of Caen, France.

Pole Says Nazis Made Him Fight

London, June 8 (AP)—Displaying every emotion from arrogance to bewilderment, the first large group of German prisoners from the Allied beachhead in northern France were landed last night at an invasion port in England.

A handful of high ranking Allied officials, several correspondents and the ship's crew witnessed the debarkation.

Among the captives were four Poles, one of whom said he had been captured and drafted by the Nazis.

VIENNA LAWYER SIMPLIFIES OPA INSTRUCTIONS

By JAMES MARLOW and
GEORGE ZIELKE

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Six years ago Rudolf Flesch was a lawyer in Vienna. His knowledge of English was the kind you'd pick up in a European capital.

Today at 33 he works for OPA, but not as a lawyer. He writes back into everyday English the English written by OPA lawyers.

The lawyers write regulations. Flesch re-writes those regulations when, in the form of bulletins, they have to be sent out to tradesmen.

Here is an OPA lawyer's explanation of an "ultimate consumer" of eggs:

"Ultimate consumer means a person or group of persons, generally constitute a domestic household, who purchase eggs generally at the individual stores of retailers or purchase and receive deliveries of eggs at the place of abode of the individual or domestic household from producers or retail route sellers and who use such eggs for their consumption as food."

In Simple Words

Flesch re-writes that to read:

"Ultimate consumers are people who buy eggs to eat them."

When Hitler went into Vienna in 1938, Flesch came to this country. He got a job as a stock clerk in a book bindery to be near books in English. After a year, he went to the Columbia University Library school on a scholarship.

When he had finished, he worked in the "readability laboratory" set up under the auspices of the American Association for Adult Education.

The purpose of the laboratory was to investigate books suitable for adult reading in a number of subjects. He did research work. Columbia gave him a doctor of philosophy degree for a study on readability.

He has had articles in Harper's and Liberty magazine on writing readable English. He was to have gone into the Internal Revenue department to help make tax forms readable. Instead, he went to OPA about a month ago.

Short Sentences

He has worked out what he says is a scientific test of sentences for their readability. Using census figures, he says, the average adult reader has had about 8 1/2 years of schooling. His tests are applied with that average reader in mind.

To reach that average reader with the written word, Flesch says:

Sentences should not average more than 17 words in length. They should be simple, not long or involved. They should not have many prepositional phrases or dependent clauses.

To create human interest and therefore hold the reader's interest, sentences should have a generous sprinkling of personal references, like the names of people, or words like mother and father, or words like I, me, you, your, he, she, it, they, them.

Don't write: "The seller can determine the price." Write it: "You can figure your price."

Sentences aimed at that average reader should contain simple words. Don't use: "Prices are established." Use: "Prices are fixed." Don't use sentences like the famous dim-out phrase: "Illumination is required to be extinguished before these premises are closed to business." Use: "Put out the lights before you go home."

POPE CONFERS WITH YANKEES

Rome, June 8 (AP)—Pope Pius XII and Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the Fifth Army, talked for 10 minutes today in the Pope's private office in the Vatican library.

Afterwards the Pope greeted Maj. Gen. Alfred H. Gruenther, chief of staff for the Fifth Army. Maj. Gen. H. H. Johnson, Rome area commander, Brig. Gen. Edgar E. Hume, chief of the American military government, and Col. (Chaplain) Patrick Rich, Fifth Army chaplain.

After the audience General Clark visited St. Peter's church with "Miser Walter Carroll, Pittsburgh, Pa. American representative in the office of the papal secretary."

The Pope had urged war correspondents to let the ultimate general purpose of their writing be for peace.

In his first press conference since becoming Pope, held in the throne room of the Vatican, the Pontiff said yesterday:

"This war should be only a means to a peace. Write for a peace that can meet the approval of all well-meaning peoples—that can assure one and all those conditions necessary so that they may live in a manner befitting the dignity of a human being."

The Pope, thin and pale but appearing surprisingly strong, told the correspondents "You are most welcome. You have a mission of tremendous importance."

Outfit Wiped Out. On Beach Landing

Aboard the U. S. Assault Transport Thomas Jefferson, June 6 (Delayed) (AP)—A former Indiana (Pa.) high school science teacher can confirm that rough English channel weather, which made proper softening up of German defenders an impossibility, jeopardized the landing of Allied spearhead troops in one sector of northern France.

"The beach was a bloody one even on the first attack," said the Pennsylvania Lt. John Kolocov, 25, who made two trips to the beaches. "I met one wave commander who said his whole outfit went down. There was heavy machine gun fire. Army equipment, tanks and navy boats were on the beach shot up and burning."

Lt. Kolocov's home is at 1625 Fifth avenue, Arnold, Pa.

MACHINE-GUN FIRE PINS DOWN ONE YANK WAVE

By LEWIS HAWKINS
(Associated Press Correspondent)

Aboard Flagship Off the French Coast, June 6 (Delayed) (AP)—American infantrymen landing on France's Normandy coast between Caenbourg and Le Havre plunged inland quickly at one point today while another unit was pinned to the beach by machine-gun fire before it could advance.

Hitting the beaches slightly behind schedule shortly after 6:30 a. m., one regimental combat team on the right flank chose a three and one-half mile stretch on which to operate. It cut through some enemy forces, bypassed others and mowed it was moving inland an hour after landing.

Other combat troops were immobilized at the start by fierce machine-gun fire poured on them from behind a ridge some 800 yards beyond highwater mark.

For several hours the men were forced to hold on in foxholes but finally they fought their way out.

German Navy Absent

The unit suffered from mines which knocked out several water-proofed tanks which managed to get on or close to shore. Artillery fire also was a problem although this seemed largely neutralized by prolonged bombardment before landings.

The battleship Arkansas and the French cruisers Montcalm and

George Leagues moved in to an amazingly short range to help hold little destroyers give all possible help to the temporarily stranded force.

Meanwhile, Allied air and sea domination remained complete with the Luftwaffe not even represented by a single hostile plane over the fleet that was spread over hundreds of square miles of sea. The German

DOG QUARANTINE

Exo, Pa., June 8 (AP)—The City Board of Health extended for 90 days the current quarantine on dogs which has been in effect the past 100 days after it learned 90 rabid dogs were found during the quarantine period.

Navy was equally conspicuous in its absence.

Murder at CANDLEWOOD

by Gene Bunker Lumber

Chapter 6
For all the rest of her life Spring would hate the sound of rain, would hear in its voice the terrified tumult of the waters, and see again the twisted, ghastly figure foiled over the stone bridge.

She turned away, shuddering. Dirk put his arm around her and faced her toward the house. "Just a minute," he said gently.

He stooped over the quiet thing that had been a man, took off his raincoat and softened the grim, angular presence of death into a shapeless mound beneath his coat.

They went back to the house, Dirk going directly to the telephone.

Spring stood watching, too numb to speak, until Dirk put down the receiver and drew her into the parlor, close to the fire.

He poured half a jigger of brandy.

"Drink this," he said. The color slowly flowed back into her lips and cheeks.

"Where will I find Gil?" he said. "We'll have to tell them. The police will be here soon."

"The police?" she whispered. "Why?"

"Because," he said grimly, "something is very wrong. Someone killed Elvan."

There was a hoarse little sound behind them and a thud. The rain seemed to pause on the tin roof outside, then began again. Dirk moved swiftly to the hall door, and came back with Jo in his arms. He laid her on the couch.

Dirk's face was gray. "That was pretty crude," he said. "I was wondering how we'd tell her."

Something in the emphasis struck Spring oddly. "Why do you say that?" she asked.

"I think she loved him," Spring stared. "Oh, no! But why?"

The front door slammed and Justen, who was a frequent visitor in Candlewood from his neighboring estate, came in with almost too much life and vigor.

He saw Jo struggling to sit up on the couch, heard her hysterical whimper: "They killed him! They killed him!"

He swung around to Dirk and Spring. "What the hell's this all about?"

His face registered shock, but his eyes flickered peculiarly. Spring felt vague terror stir in the back of her mind.

Those next two hours were a nightmare. Great Aunt Adelaide rolled her wheelchair into the parlor like an approaching thundercloud, recoiled at the grim news. "Elvan!" she quavered. "Not little Elvan!"

Aunt Drusilla folded up in the lounge chair beside the fire and began to cry softly. She was still crying when Gil came in, summoned from the candle shop.

The shop was some thirty rods from the house, set against a hilllock in a grove of red maples across the southeast terrace of Candlewood. Gil must have run all the way, for he was breathing heavily as he came in. He had someone with him, a slim, dark girl with black, vigilant eyes, and someone remembered to introduce her to Spring and Dirk.

"Moria—" It was Justen speaking—"Moria Hastings. She helps Gil in the shop."

Spring liked her at once. She was clean-cut, intelligent, capable. "I think," Moria said, going over to Jo on the couch, "it would be better for you out of this excitement."

She urged the girl to go up to her room. But Jo drew back.

"No!" she said. "No, I'm not going! I'm going to wait for the police! I can tell them some things. I can tell them who killed Elvan!"

A wiry, hard-muscled little man stared at them from the hall doorway. Spring recognized him as Ben Callen, the constable from Ten Mile. He was gentle-voiced, heavily browsed, and he had a dimple in his left cheek. When he smiled it lighted up his sober face, but when he looked as he did now, grim and severe, it creased into a hard, taut line.

Gil moved across the room to Jo, but persuading the girl to go to her room was useless. "No use listening to her now," he told Ben. "She doesn't know what she's saying."

But Ben moved slowly into the room, watching Jo intently. Behind him, Spring saw Dr. Kirkland from Ten Mile.

"Go on, Miss Winters," Ben urged softly. "Go on."

Jo stood up, magnificently lovely. "Ask them!" she cried. "Ask them if they didn't hate him! They killed him. They had a good reason!"

"Who, Miss Winters?"

"Spring killed him!" Jo said clearly. "She loves Lieutenant Lane. She knew she had to marry Elvan. She killed him! Her room overlooks the bridge!"

Justen put in smoothly. "So does Dirk's, for that matter."

SHARP DROP IN "ABSENTEEISM"

Pittsburgh, June 8 (AP)—"Incredible minimums" of absenteeism today continued to spur production in war plants throughout western Pennsylvania following the invasion of France.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., meanwhile, reported that its 20,000 employees at the East Pittsburgh and Trafford works re-affirmed their no-strike pledge as Navy commander W. W. Slocom reminded the workers that "this is only the beginning, and the outcome of this war depends upon us producing more than we ever produced before."

Six hundred strikers at the McKees Rocks plant of Pressed Steel Car Co. returned to work yesterday after hearing appeals of a Navy officer and Union official to back up the boys who are "dying on the beachheads of France."

Sharp drops in absenteeism were reported at the Jessop Steel Co. at Washington, Pa., the Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corp., Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., Jones and McLaughlin Steel Corp., Blaw-Knox Co., Pittsburgh, and the Aluminum Company of America, at New Kensington, some reaching the lowest in many months.

Washington, June 8 (AP)—A Senate-House Conference committee compromised today on a six-months' extension—until next December 7—of the time in which court martial proceedings might be instituted against Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short as a result of the Pearl Harbor catastrophe.

The present extension expires at midnight tonight.

GREAT FIRES BURNING BACK OF NAZI LINES

By PETER GLADWIN
(Representing the Combined Allied Press)

Distributed by The Associated Press
An Airbase in England, June 8—We flew over a naval battle in the channel before dawn Wednesday and crossed the French coast to find the country behind the Normandy beachheads blazing with great fires.

The mission of our Mitchell medium bombers was the same as Tuesday's—to cut communications behind the beachhead and impede the reinforcement of German forces attempting to drive back the Allied thrust for Caen.

Allied Mastery
As we scudded across the channel below the low cloud ceiling, underneath we could see a group of destroyers astern, and farther over, a line of enemy E-boats. We watched the destroyers open fire but we could not see its effects. In a few moments the E-boats were hidden in their own shroud of smoke-screen.

We flew the entire trip from base to target and back at an altitude of 3,000 feet, made necessary by the low ceiling of extremely thick clouds. Icing conditions were bad on top. It was a significant indication of the extent of Allied mastery of the skies of northern France that the Mitchells completed this mission successfully and without loss.

Bomber At Work
As we crossed the French coast searchlights picked us up. I sat waiting for the flak to arrive, but Pilot Phil Creeke, of Sydney, Australia, weaved up into the clouds and shook off the lights.

When we came out of the clouds again we could see away over the Normandy battlefield. The night was torn with gun flashes and the dull glow of fires against the dark horizon. Nearer, great blazing fires marked the path of the bombers which had been over earlier in the night.

Caen was burning in the distance. As we approached our target we could see heavy bombers at work on Lisieux. We could not see the bombers themselves, but there was plenty of evidence of their presence.

"One Enormous Bonfire"
I saw one terrific explosion as we turned to our own target. It was a railway bridge across a river. On our port side a little town was burning like one enormous bonfire.

We circled our target while another Mitchell dropped his bombs. Then we went in and let go a stick of 1,000-pound bombs.

Weaving our way back to the coast we encountered some light flak, but we were through before the Germans had the range. We crossed the coast in a heavy rain which drove the ceiling lower. Through the murk over the channel I could see the Aldis signalling lamps blinking.

APPEAL DENIED
Norristown, Pa., June 8 (AP)—The appeal of Mrs. Helen M. Wucherer against her second-degree murder conviction in the shooting of her husband, August Wucherer, was denied Wednesday by Judge George C. Corson. She was ordered to appear Friday for sentencing.

hampered production for three days would be discharged if they failed to resume production by that time.

Kennedy's ultimatum came shortly after a War Labor Board order for the strikers to resume their tasks and after representatives of the Army and the employees' CIO union had made similar requests. The board said no group "can be permitted to place their grievance above the immediate needs of the armed forces." The dispute arose when seven negro workers were transferred to a department formerly manned by white employees.

In Other Areas
Meanwhile, work stoppages in scattered sections of the country, resulting from labor controversies, kept an additional estimated 6,000 men and women idle in nine separate industries. Two other disputes, affecting 2,750 workers, were settled yesterday.

However, there were two new plants affected by labor troubles, in East St. Louis and in York, Pa. In the former city the Obeurner Glass Company closed after a strike of 70 of its 875 employees over demands for wage increases and new working conditions. In York a naval officer suspended 52 workers at the Navy-operated special ordnance plant of the York and Lock Company, asserting they had stopped work.

PRISONERS CAMP
London, June 8 (AP)—A camp for Allied prisoners has been made at Rouen in the invasion area, the Berlin radio said Wednesday, adding: "When the prisoners were transferred there were some incidents with the population."

VIENNA LAWYER SIMPLIFIES OPA INSTRUCTIONS

By JAMES MARLOW and
GEORGE ZIELKE

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Six years ago Rudolf Flesch was a lawyer in Vienna. His knowledge of English was the kind you'd pick up in a European capital.

Today at 33 he works for OPA, but not as a lawyer. He writes back into everyday English the English written by OPA lawyers.

The lawyers write regulations. Flesch re-writes those regulations when, in the form of bulletins, they have to be sent out to tradersmen.

Here is an OPA lawyer's explanation of an "ultimate consumer" of eggs:

"Ultimate consumer means a person or group of persons, generally constitute a domestic household, who purchase eggs generally at the individual stores of retailers or purchase and receive deliveries of eggs at the place of abode of the individual or domestic household from producers or retail route sellers and who use such eggs for their consumption as food."

In Simple Words

Flesch re-writes that to read: "Ultimate consumers are people who buy eggs to eat them." When Hitler went into Vienna in 1938, Flesch came to this country. He got a job as a stock clerk in a book bindery to be near books in English. After a year, he went to the Columbia University library school on a scholarship.

When he had finished, he worked in the "readability laboratory" set up under the auspices of the American Association for Adult Education.

The purpose of the laboratory was to investigate books suitable for adult reading in a number of subjects. He did research work. Columbia gave him a doctor of philosophy degree for a study on readability.

He has had articles in Harper's and Liberty magazine on writing readable English. He was to have gone into the Internal Revenue department to help make tax forms readable. Instead, he went to OPA about a month ago.

Short Sentences

He has worked out what he says is a scientific test of sentences for their readability. Using census figures, he says, the average adult reader has had about 8 1/2 years of schooling. His tests are applied with that average reader in mind.

To reach that average reader with the written word, Flesch says:

Sentences should not average more than 17 words in length. They should be simple, not long or involved. They should not have many prepositional phrases or dependent clauses.

To create human interest and therefore hold the reader's interest, sentences should have a generous sprinkling of personal references, like the names of people, or words like mother and father, or words like I, me, you, your, he, she, it, they, them.

Don't write: "The seller can determine the price." Write it: "You can figure your price."

Sentences aimed at that average reader should contain simple words. Don't use: "Prices are established." Use: "Prices are fixed." Don't use sentences like the famous dim-out phrase: "Illumination is required to be extinguished before these premises are closed to business." Use: "Put out the lights before you go home."

POPE CONFERS WITH YANKEES

Rome, June 8 (AP)—Pope Pius XII and Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the Fifth Army, talked for 10 minutes today in the Pope's private office in the Vatican library.

Afterwards the Pope greeted Maj. Gen. Alfred H. Gruenther, chief of staff for the Fifth Army, Maj. Gen. H. H. Johnson, Rome area commander, Brig. Gen. Edgar E. Hume, chief of the American military government, and Col. (Chaplain) Patrick Ryan, Fifth Army chaplain.

After the audience General Clark visited St. Peter's church with Msgr. Walter Carroll, Pittsburgh, Pa., American representative in the office of the papal secretary.

The Pope had urged war correspondents to let the ultimate general purpose of their writing be for peace.

In his first press conference since becoming Pope, held in the throne room of the Vatican, the Pontiff said yesterday:

"This war should be only a means to a peace. Write for a peace that can meet the approval of all well meaning peoples—that can assure one and all those conditions necessary so that they may live in a manner befitting the dignity of a human being."

The Pope, thin and pale but appearing surprisingly strong, told the correspondents "You are most welcome. You have a mission of tremendous importance."

Outfit Wiped Out On Beach Landing

Aboard the U. S. Assault Transport Thomas Jefferson, June 6 (Delayed) (AP)—A former Indiana (Pa.) high school science teacher can confirm that rough English channel weather, which made proper softening up of German defenders an impossibility, jeopardized the landing of Allied spearhead troops in one sector of northern France.

"The beach was a bloody one even on the first wave," said the Pennsylvanian, Lt. John Kolody, 25, who made two trips to the beaches. "I met one wave commander who said his whole outfit went down. There was heavy machine gun fire. Army equipment, tanks and navy boats were on the beach shot up and burning."

Lt. Kolody's home is at 1625 Fifth avenue, Arnold, Pa.

MACHINE-GUN FIRE PINS DOWN ONE YANK WAVE

By LEWIS HAWKINS

(Associated Press Correspondent)
Aboard Flagship Off the French Coast, June 6 (Delayed) (AP)—American infantrymen, landing on France's Normandy coast between Cherbourg and Le Havre, plunged inland quickly at one point today while another unit was pinned to the beach by machine-gun fire before it could advance.

Hitting the beaches slightly behind schedule shortly after 6:30 a. m., one regimental combat team on the right flank chose a three and one-half mile stretch on which to operate. It cut through some enemy forces, bypassed others and messaged it was moving inland an hour after landing.

Other combat troops were immobilized at the start by fierce machine-gun fire poured on them from behind a ridge some 800 yards beyond highwater mark.

For several hours the men were forced to hold on in foxholes but finally they fought their way out.

German Navy Absent

The unit suffered from mines which knocked out several water-proofed tanks which managed to get on or close to shore. Artillery fire also was a problem although this seemed largely neutralized by prolonged bombardment before landings.

The battleship Arkansas and the French cruisers Montcalm and

George Leygues moved in to an amazingly short range to help hold little destroyers give all possible help to the temporarily stranded force.

Meanwhile, Allied air and sea dominion remained complete with the Luftwaffe not even represented by a single hostile plane over the fleet that was spread over hundreds of square miles of sea. The German
